SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 14TH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1903.

MATTHEY, Appellant.

versus

SILAS, Respondent.

This is an appeal from a decision of the Assistant Police Magistrate, ordering the appellant to deliver to the respondent a silver cup, or pay her $48 with costs less $31 25, which the appellant paid when redeeming it from the Pawn shop.

It appears that the cup in question belonged to the respondent's husband and was given by him to the plaintiff. The cup was subsequently pawned. The respondent asked the appellant to take the cup out of pawn and buy it from her. The appellant took the pawn ticket from the respondent, he refused to buy the cup but took it out of pawn promising the respondent's husband that at any time he wished to buy it back he could, by paying what he had paid at the pawn shop. The respondent, a considerable time subsequently, offered the appellant the amount he had paid the pawn shop, but he said he could not deliver the cup as he had parted with it. The respondent was married to her husband in community of goods. Her husband died intestate, leaving issue of his marriage with the respondent, all of whom are minors. There has been no adiation on behalf of the minors of the estate of their deceased father.

On the foregoing facts it is contended on behalf of the appellant that the respondent cannot alone bring an action for the recovery of the cup inasmuch as the alleged donation between husband and wife is void and therefore the Administrator General should have been joined as representing the estate of the deceased husband.

An action in detinue or for conversion can be brought by any one entitled to the possession of the goods wrongfully held by the defendant. Leaving out all question as to the donation to the respondent, the respondent having been married in community of goods was entitled to an undivided half of the common property, including the cup. She is in the position to a co-owner. Under the English law the cases seem to show that one co-owner is entitled to bring detinue against anyone except another co-owner or any person holding as trustee of a co-owner. Under our local law the respondent is in a much stronger position than a co-owner, she is a surviving spouse remaining in possession of the common property, there being no adiation or any other act whereby the children or heirs have dissolved the community, the heirs are shown to be minors and therefore prima facie under the guardianship of the plaintiff.

In my opinion under the circumstances proved the plaintiff as the surviving spouse remaining in possession of the common property is entitled to possession of the cup and can maintain an action of detinue or conversion against a third party who has no title thereto.

It was further urged that the Magistrate was not justified in valuing the cup at $48. I think there was ample evidence to justify the Magistrate's finding. It was proved that to buy a similar cup new would cost £10.—if the appellant does not deliver the cup the respondent would have to pay £10 to get another cup and would also have to pay to get the inscription put on which in her eyes may be of great value.

These were the only reasons of appeal raised and argued and as they in my opinion both fail, I must dismiss this appeal with costs.

HIS Excellency the Governor directs the publication for general information, of the following report of the proceedings in the case of the Crown versus Ralph Fitzgibbon Lewis, the Governor of Her Late Majesty's Gaol at Brisbane, Queensland, and Auguste Casimir Chabal, a French escapee from New Caledonia :—

Brisbane Courier, 3rd September, 1900.

SUPREME COURT.

FRENCH RECIDIVISTES IN TROUBLE, SEPTEMBER 3RD, 1900.

APPLICATION FOR DISCHARGE.

The Chief Justice had before him this morning the matter of the Queen v. Ralph Fitzgibbon Lewis, the Governor of Her Majesty's Gaol, and Auguste Casimir Chabal, a French escapee from New Caledonia. Mr. Hart, who was assigned by the Crown to appear on behalf of the prisoner, moved for his discharge from custody. The Hon. A. Rutledge, Attorney General, with Mr. Kingsbury, appeared for the Crown in support of his extradition. The application was based principally on the ground that there was no evidence before the Court that the prisoner was banished for an extraditable offence. Chabal had been convicted of theft before the Marseilles Police Tribunal in October, 1892, and having been previously convicted and sentenced to hard labour for other offences, the court sentenced him to "banishment and further to six months' imprisonment for theft." Counsel for the applicant submitted on this that the cause of the banishment was not the theft, but the three previous convictions. Another ground raised was, that the prisoner had served his sentence, and at the expiration of 6 years was entitled to return to France a free man.

The Attorney General argued that the court would presume that the convictions of the French court were regular and proper. The question was whether the prisoner had been convicted of an extraditable offence. It was clear that larceny was such an offence. In passing sentence for that offence the French court had taken into consideration the fact that the prisoner had been previously convicted of other offences, some of a graver character and to the six months' imprisonment the court added perpetual banishment in New Caledonia. The prisoner could be free in New Caledonia, but nowhere else. The fact that at the expiration of 6 years he was entitled to make an application for some special remission counted for nothing unless it were shown that an application had been made and granted. The prisoner, counsel urged, was legally in custody, and his extradition as asked for by the authorities of New Caledonia should be granted by the court.

His Honour, in giving judgment, said it appeared from the official record of the conviction sent in with the demand for extradition that the prisoner had been convicted in 1892 of the offence of theft by a competent French court. By the banishment law—relegation—of 1835, it was provided that in case of recidivists who had had several previous convictions, a prisoner convicted of certain offences, of which theft was one, might be sentenced to "relegation" in addition to a term of imprisonment. Chabal, it appeared, was sentenced to banishment and to six months' imprisonment, and the record stated the previous convictions which justified the court in passing the sentence of banishment. The prisoner appeared to have appealed to the superior court in France, and the conviction was confirmed. By the French law he was sentenced to perpetual confinement in New Caledonia, and for any attempt to leave the island he was liable to two years' imprisonment though it was true that at the end of six years he might apply for a remission. The application therefore failed, and the prisoner was remitted to custody.

A similar application was made in the case of Henri Firmin Cheyron, another escapee, who had been convicted of theft and resisting the police, and was sentenced to banishment and a year's imprisonment.

The application was refused on the same grounds as in Chabal's case.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

GENERAL JURISDICTION.

THIS 13TH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1903.

IN Re APPLICATION W. B. JOHNSON FOR A RULE ON MR. STIPENDIARY MAGISTRATE GALL, AND MARTHA TRIUMPH.

This is an application by one W. B. Johnson, to make absolute a rule obtained by him on the 30th of December, 1902, calling on F. A. Gall, Esq., Stipendiary Magistrate, East Coast Demerara Judicial District and Martha Triumph, to show cause why the said Magistrate should not hear and adjudicate on a complaint before him by the said "W. B. Johnson, Chairman of the Village Council of Plaisance, against the said Martha Triumph" for that the said Martha Triumph, on the 9th day of October, 1902, at Plaisance in the said district did obstruct him in the performance of his duty as such Chairman, contrary to section 132, s. 2 Ordinance 6 of 1892, the Magistrate having (it is alleged) declined jurisdiction on the ground taken by the defendant that the complainant was not authorised in law to make the complaint.

Three questions arise for consideration on this application: (1) whether the procedure adopted in this case is correct (in other words), whether the applicant was right in applying for a rule instead of appealing; (2) if so, then, whether the ground taken by the Magistrate is maintainable; and (3) if not, whether there is any reason why the rule should not be made absolute.

The answer to the first of these questions depends on whether the Magistrate must be held to have declined jurisdiction (Roy v. Hodgson, 7th Nov., 1902, R. v. Paynter, 26 L. J. Ma. C. 102 c.f., R. v. Richards, 20 L. J. Q. B. 351.) It is well established law that a Magistrate's summary jurisdiction in any case depends on his having before him a complaint (a) sufficient in its terms; (b) by a person competent to make it; (c) relating to a matter which, having regard to its time and place and nature is within his cognisance; whether the statements contained in that complaint be true or false. (R. v. Bolton, 1, Q. v. B. 60; R. v. Hicks, 24 L. J. Ma. C. 94; R. v. Daman, 2 B. and A. 378; R. v. Corden, 4 Bur. 2,279.) If therefore, as in the present instance, in any case relating to a summary conviction offence, which cases in many respects differ from Petty Debt proceedings, a Magistrate abstains from adjudicating on the merits of the case in consequence of his arriving at a decision that the complaint before him is not made by a competent person, this is equivalent to a decision that he has no jurisdiction, and is a declining of jurisdiction in that case; and if the decision is erroneous this Court can by the issue of a rule set him right, freeing him thereby from all risk. (Ordinance 13 of 1893, section 3.) We think, therefore, the procedure adopted by the applicant in this case is correct.

So far as the second question is concerned, we are unable to agree with the conclusion at which the Magistrate arrived. The complaint could obviously be brought by any person unless it appears from the Village Ordinance, 1892, that it could be brought only by a particular person or class of persons (Ordinance 12 of 1893, section 6.) But section 14, of the Village Ordinance 1892, which is the only provision in that Ordinance which can be cited as requiring the complaint to be made by a particular person or class, in our opinion has not that effect, but only provides that in the event of any action or prosecution on behalf of or against any village, the Inspector of Villages, may, with the authority of the Board institute and carry on or defend the proceedings, in the place of the indefinite entity known as the Village. This interpretation of the section is supported not only by its terms, but also by the fact that penalties under the Ordinance are by section 137 declared, without any qualification or limitation, to be recoverable under the Summary Jurisdiction Ordinances, and therefore are prima facie, recoverable on the complaint of any person and all penalties are payable not to the Village but to the Public Treasury.

The third question for decision is, whether there is any other reason why the rule should not be made absolute. It is clear on the face of the complaint, that the provision of the Village Ordinance stated to have been infringed, is not the one which was broken. It has been decided (Cahuac v. Birch, 21st January, 1865, Martin v. Birch, 21st January, 1865,) that if the enactment alleged to have been broken is specified in a complaint, it must be correctly stated. To make this rule absolute would therefore be to direct the magistrate to hear a complaint which it is admitted, must be amended. There is no power vested in this Court to amend the charge in proceedings like the present and then require the Magistrate to hear and determine an amended charge which has never been before him, and the Court cannot, in our opinion, properly require him to hear and determine the charge as originally laid.

The application is therefore dismissed, but under all the circumstances without costs.

A. V. LUCIE SMITH, J.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 18TH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1903.

DEMERARA ELECTRIC CO., Appellants.

versus

RICHTER, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the decision of the Acting Police Magistrate, awarding damages to the respondent, in respect of the injury done to the respondent's carriage, by the negligent driving of the appellants' tram car.

The reason of appeal is to the effect that the decision is erroneous inasmuch as there was no evidence of negligence.

The learned counsel for the appellants went most carefully through the evidence to shew that it was impossible there could have been negligence on behalf of the appellants' servant, and that there was negligence on behalf of the respondent's servant. On a careful consideration of the evidence, I am clearly of opinion, that the case was such that had I been trying it with a jury, I would have felt bound to have left it to them to say if there was negligence or not. The question whether the respondent's carriage had already commenced to cross the line before the car, which had been stopped, was again put in motion, was a question for the jury, and on their finding it appears to me would depend whether there was negligence or not.

If there was evidence which a judge would be bound to leave to a jury, as I think there was in this case, this Court cannot interfere with the finding of the Magistrate, who, on questions of fact, is the jury. I must, therefore, dismiss this appeal with costs.

A. V. LUCIE SMITH, J.

SHAW, Appellant,

versus

DE SOUZA, Respondent.

The appellant claimed from the respondent delivery of a certain pawn ticket or payment of the sum of $35, the value thereof; the acting Police Magistrate granted a non-suit, from this decision the appellant now appeals.

The reasons given by the Magistrate for his judgment are as follows:—"The case for the plaintiff rested entirely upon his evidence, and that of 'Vieira, a discharged servant of the defendant, as to whether the ticket was ever delivered to Vieira and the circumstances attending such delivery. Taking into consideration the demeanour of these two witnesses, the manner they give their evidence and the testimony of Rodrigues and Mr. Dargan, 'I cannot say I believe them, and non-suit accordingly.'"

It is contended that all the material allegations necessary in an action for detinue were before the Magistrate and were not denied, and that, therefore, the Magistrate could not consider the demeanour of the witnesses, and was bound to give judgment in favour of the plaintiff. It is urged that the question of demeanour is not applicable except when there is a conflict of testimony, the cases of Coghlan v. Cumberbatch (1898) 1 C.D. 704, and The Glanibanta 1 P. D. 238, were cited as authorities for this proposition. These cases are to the effect that in England, as an appeal is a rehearing of the case the Court of appeal must draw its own conclusions of fact from the whole of the evidence, but that where there is a conflict of testimony, the Court of appeal will be guided by the finding of the Court below, where the credibility or not of a witness is at issue because the Court below has had the advantage of seeing the demeanour of the witness. The cases do not, in my opinion, decide as is contended that in coming to a decision whether a certain witness is speaking the truth or not the Court cannot take in to account his demeanour if there is no direct contradiction of his testimony. It may very possibly be that from the nature of the evidence there could be no contradiction. Under our local Appeal Ordinance, an appeal is not a rehearing of the case but appeal is only allowed on a certain specified ground (Santos v. Nunes).

In the present case the defendant had no knowledge of what went on in the rum shop. The plaintiff alleged that he gave the shopman, Vieira, a pawn ticket as security for goods supplied. Vieira admits this to be true, but when a list of the pledges given to the rum shop is made this pawn ticket does not appear thereon. The plaintiff does not claim the ticket for a considerable time after the time he alleges he deposited it. The Magistrate says from their demeanour and the rest of the evidence given he does not believe the plaintiff and Vieira. This Court cannot say the Magistrate is bound to believe them. If the matter were a summary jurisdiction case, e.g. larceny, and one witness had said he had, say, a watch stolen from him, and another witness that he saw the accused steal the watch, but the Magistrate after seeing and hearing the witnesses came to the conclusion they were both speaking falsely, it could not possibly be contended that the Magistrate was bound to convict. The same law applies both to Petty Debt and Summary conviction Appeals.

For these reasons, I am of opinion the appeal cannot be allowed, and must be dismissed with costs.

208, Camp Street,

Dear Mr. Sconce,

In accordance with the request made in your letter of the 6th December, I formed a Committee of six ladies, viz., Mrs. Ashmore, Mrs. Howell Jones, Mrs. Lucie Smith, Mrs. Duncan, Mrs. Russell Garnett, and myself to examine, and report on the work of the competitors in "Lady Sendall's Needlework Competition," and now I forward you the result of our inspection of the several samples you sent me. At the same time the Committee wish me to make the following remarks which we all think may be of some use if this Competition is to be continued.

1. The children from some schools have put in linen patches and used white cotton, while those from other schools have put in calico patches and used coloured cotton. The former have a distinct advantage in both respects in the Competition, and we think care should be taken to give the competitors in each section the same material to work on, the same sized needle, and cotton of the same number, and cotton of one colour should be supplied throughout the schools except in the case of "fine darning on calico or holland," in Section "D" when two colours should be used. I may mention here that in the present instance the fine darning has been done on muslin and not on calico, as the notice required.

2. A large number of the children have darned on the stocking web, with sewing cotton (which is not correct) and in other cases the wool used was too coarse for the web. Darning has also been done in some instances on the materials without any hole being first made, and for such darning we have not given marks.

3. The Committee have given the Competitors No. 161, and No. 162, in Section C, "Honourable Mention," marks on account of the excellence of their button holes, but their general work is not good. In all other similar cases (apparently from the same school) the workers had to be disqualified, none of the work except the button holes being good, the herring boning being quite incorrect, and much time having been wasted in "Gauging," which is not one of the subjects in that Section. The Sewing Mistress should be aware that being good in only one subject will not bring the pupils' marks up even to the minimum for "Honourable Mention."

4. Many children in Section "C," did hemming, felling and stitching as if each of these was a subject for competition in that Section. This took away from the time necessary for their proper work. In Section "C," in the case of sample No. 938 and other similar to it, the Committee do not consider that a patch was made at all, there was simply a slit cut in the cloth, but not a proper patch made.

5. The Committee notice that there is a marked difference in work done by Sections "A" and "B" compared with "C," "D" and Pupil Teachers', the former being much better taking into consideration the difference of ages.

Enclosed are some specimens which will illustrate some of the above remarks.

Yours truly,

(Sgd.) ANNIE C. BOVELL.

J'ai l'honneur de porter à votre connaissance que le Gouvernement Princier croit devoir dénoncer l'Arrangement Commercial intervenu le 12/24 Juillet, 1897, entre le Principauté de Bulgarie et le Royaume-Uni de la Grande-Bretagne et d'Irlande.

M. GOMES.

This is an application for relief by way of interpleader. On the matter coming on for hearing, Counsel for the execution creditor contended that the claimant, J. B. Farinha, should file an affidavit stating the nature and particulars of his claim and I directed that that should be done, whereupon an affidavit was filed and it was objected to on the ground of insufficiency. The affidavit is wanting in particulars and I order that the claimant do within four days file an affidavit stating fully and clearly the nature and particulars of his claim, and I adjourn this matter until Saturday next. The question of costs to be reserved until the disposal of the case.

CHARLES B. GROSE.

This is an action by which the plaintiff asks that the defendant be condemned to pass to and in his favour, a legal and valid transport of a piece of land, known as lot 12, situate at Sans Souci, in the Island of Wakenaam, or to repay to the plaintiff the sum of $50 paid as purchaser money, and for $25 damages and costs.

The defendant denies that he ever guaranteed transport, says that he never had a title himself and that the plaintiff knew this having been a tenant of the defendant, for a number of years. The plaintiff and the defendant were the only witnesses called.

The receipt of the purchase money was produced, it is dated February 6th, 1900, and in a bare receipt "for the price of lot No. 12, Sans Souci, Wakenaam."

A letter is also produced from the defendant to the plaintiff dated 19.1.1900, as follows:—

Mr. Lutchman,—I have received your letter. You may send me the $10, on receipt of this, and I will give up the costs 98 cents, i.e. summons 48 cents, affidavit 50 cents.

You see people that I owe insist on my paying them, and I have a large family and I have use for every cent that belongs to me. If you wish to be proprietor of lot 12, send me $50 at once and I will give up the $10. If you send me the $50, I will save you and myself the expense of going to Georgetown in this way. I will put up the lot for sale here and buy it in your name and send you the letters of decree without a cent of costs to you. If you have not sufficient faith in me I can't help. Let me hear from you.

Yours faithfully,

CHARLES B. GROSE.

send me your free ticket and I will return it.

C. B. G.

This letter clearly indicites the conditions of sale as offered by the defendant, who had apparently sued for rent, and obtained judgment.

The terms were accepted, for the $50 were paid on February 6, 1900, about eighteen days after the offer.

The defendant took no action and on the 8th February, 1902, Mr. Correia sent a letter to the defendant demanding transport and twenty-five dollars damages. The defendant replied explaining why he had done nothing.

The defendant is not in a position to pass transport, nor were the conditions of sale that he would do so. The inducement held out for the immediate payment of the $50, was the foregoing the $10 and costs of the Petty Debt suit together with a promise to get a title by letters of decree for the plaintiff, without any further expenditure. I cannot direct that a transport be passed, the defendant not being in a position to pass one. I therefore give judgment for plaintiff for $50. As no damages were shewn, I award none. I give no costs either under the circumstances, the plaintiff should not have allowed so long a time to elapse, before taking action, knowing, as he must have done, that no transport was possible.

CHANGAMAH, EXECUTRIX of JOHN GOBIN, DECEASED,

versus

ANGOO VANDEYAR.

The plaintiff claims the sum of one hundred and fifty dollars alleged to be due on a Promissory note which has been lost, the plaintiff offering to indemnify the defendant. The defendant denies making the note for the sum alleged, but says on or about the 18th April, 1902, he signed a Promissory note for one hundred and eighteen dollars, payable nine months after date, and that the said note was at the commencement of this action in possession of one "Baby" to whom it was delivered by John Gobin previously to his death, and who has demanded payment.

From the evidence it is proved that on the 23rd March, 1899, the defendant and his brother, S. A. Vandeyar, borrowed one hundred and fifty dollars from John Gobin and gave him a joint Promissory note for one hundred and sixty-eight dollars being for the principal and interest for six months, at the rate of two cents in the dollar per month, security also being given of E $\frac{1}{2}$ lot 171, and E $\frac{1}{2}$ lot, 16, both situate in Bourda. This note was produced by the defendant. There were also three other notes, one dated 23rd December, 1897, for \$174, one dated 18th March, 1901, for \$168, and one dated 19th September, 1901, also for \$168, all these notes were signed by the two brothers Vandeyar, and the same security given.

An indorsement on the first note is to the effect that four months interest amounting to $12 was paid up to the 9th July, 1899, with a further promise to pay $168, six months after the then date 9th July, 1899, the next regular note being the one dated 23rd December, 1899, the amount of which $174 was presumably made up of the principal and compound interest. There were no notes produced for any transactions in 1900, but there is little doubt that there were renewals during that year. The plaintiff herself only knows of the original Promissory note, she appears to have left Gobin for some three or four years during which period her place was taken by "Baby". Gobin became seriously ill in the latter part of 1902, and was removed from lot 13, Water Street, where he had been living to Albert town, to the house of the plaintiff, where he died on 15th October, about ten days after his removal from Water Street. The will is dated the 7th October, 1902. On the 9th of October Gobin sent for the defendant who went to Albert town. The plaintiff's case is that Gobin told defendant, when he came, to pay to her the $150 he owed, and in support of this three witnesses were called while one witness says on or about the 18th April, 1902, he was present when defendant signed a note for $150 payable in six months, this note was read to him, he did not read it himself, but he signed it as a witness. The plaintiff searched for the Promissory note, but it was missing together with some others from a box at the Water Street abode.

For the defence, the defendant himself, his brother, who signed the notes with him and his eldest brother who wrote the notes were called. They denied positively the making of a note for $150, saying a note was made for $118 that is for $100 borrowed by the defendant after the joint note was paid together with the interest on it at $2 a month being two cents per dollar per month, the same rate as was payable on all the notes.

Baby was not called, she is said to be in the North West somewhere.

This is one of those cases in which it is very difficult to arrive at a conclusion from the oral evidence. From the documents produced it is clear, however, up to 19th September, 1901, all the notes were signed by the two brothers and were for principal and interest, furthermore the security was specified. The alleged missing note now sued on was only signed, it is said, by the defendant and was, according to the plaintiff's case, for the principal alone.

I cannot believe that the deceased man Gobin would have taken a Promissory note on any other terms than those he always insisted on, unless the interest was paid in advance, which is hardly likely. I think the evidence for the defence is the more to be credited.

I give judgment for the defendant with costs.

PETITION.

IN re PLANTATION PROVIDENCE.

The question for decision is whether under Order xxxvi, Rule 50, an immediate sale of this plantation should be directed or the sequestration be allowed to continue for twelve months from the date of levy; and the decision, according to the words of the Rule, must depend on whether an immediate sale or a continuation of the sequestration "will be most advantageous to the interests of creditors."

I can find no judgment in which the meaning to be given to these words has been discussed and expressly determined; but having regard to the fact that creditors are not required by advertisement to put in their claims until after a plantation has been sold, and that, therefore, the Court in deciding a question like the present has not before it, as a rule, any information as to the existence of any creditors other than the execution creditor, and the mortgagee (if any) of whose existence the Rules require the Court to take judicial notice, the words must in my opinion mean, not "most advantageous to the interests of specified creditors," but "most advantageous to the interests of all persons whoever and however many or few they may be, who on claims being called for and put in may be found to be creditors;" and the effect of the words would, therefore, appear to be that an immediate sale or a continuance of the sequestration is to be directed according as the Court is satisfied that the one or the other will produce the largest fund for division among those ultimately ascertained to be creditors. This interpretation is, in my opinion, not inconsistent with Rules 56 and 57, which in effect require the Court in dealing with certain applications to consider certain creditors such creditors being the only ones of whose existence the Court at the time of such applications has notice.

Under the Rules the necessary expenses in carrying on a plantation during the period of sequestration, including all the expenses necessarily connected with a sequestration, become a first charge on the proceeds of sale. It seems to me, therefore that unless the Court is satisfied either (1) that at the end of a year's sequestration a substantially better price will probably be obtained for the plantation, or (2) that an equally good price will be then obtained, and that there will be an appreciable profit derived from the continuance of the sequestration for the year, an immediate sale is, as a rule most advantageous to creditors, as it relieves them from the risk necessarily attendant on the carrying on of a plantation for one year only, and from the consequent risk of the proceeds of sale being diminished by the deduction therefrom of any loss sustained on the working of the plantation and of the necessary expenses of sequestration.

In the present case, I am not satisfied that a substantially better price will probably be obtained if the sequestration be continued for one year; it being, in my opinion, a mere matter of speculation whether at the close of such a short period, a more reliable forecast of the possible effect of the abolition of bounties could be formed than at the present time, even if it be assumed that hopes now entertained cannot be lessened during that period; and it being clear both from the sequestrators' report and from Mr. Sanford's, that unless a substantial sum be laid out on improvements (which is impossible) the property itself will not command a better price from being in a better condition at the close of the period. Nor can the Court, in my opinion, rightly be influenced by any expectations entertained by the annuitant's representative, when the trust mentioned in his report was renewed, as to the course which would be taken by the British (Guiana) Bank as mortgagee, it not being shewn that the course actually taken by the Bank is illegal, or that the Bank is in any way legally debarred from taking that course.

The question, therefore, is whether there will be such an appreciable profit derived from the continuance of the sequestration for a year as to outweigh the advantages of an immediate sale and of the avoidance of the risk of such continuance.

The only reliable data the Court has for the determination of this question are supplied by the several reports and counter reports now before it and the documents thereto annexed or otherwise connected with this sequestration. From the sequestrators' report and its annexes it appears that they anticipate, if the sequestration be continued, a loss on the working of the plantation of at least $4,340 00. On the other hand from Mr. Sanford's report which accompanies Mr. McKinnon's counter report, it will be seen that he estimates there would be, under the same circumstances, a clearance of $17,905 40 on the plantation's working for the year. These two estimates cannot both be accurate forecasts of the position, at the end of 1903, and it is impossible to say that one can properly be assumed to be more reliable than the other; both Mr. Craib and Mr. Sanford, being competent planters, and both well acquainted with this plantation and there being no ground for supposing that either of them has not given a bona fide and careful estimate. The Court under these circumstances must endeavor to discover the most reasonable conclusion from the evidence before it, but when such a substantial difference exists between the estimates of experts, no absolute reliance can be placed on the conclusion arrived at. Mr. Craib's estimate of expenditure (Jan.-Dec., 1903), is much higher in many of its items than his estimate of expenditure (July, 1902, - June, 1903), recently laid before the Court, and no satisfactory explanation is given of the increase on some of the items. If the chief unexplained increases in his last estimate be struck out, Mr. Seudamore's estimate No. 1 be adopted, with the omission of the sum of $2,500 00, mentioned in sec. 21 of the sequestrators' report and the mean between the total of these reduced estimates and Mr. Sanford's estimate of total expenditure for the year be taken, a sum of about $74,500 00 is arrived at, which on the evidence appears to me a fair estimate of the expenditure necessary for carrying on the plantation for the year. In the absence of other expert evidence and in view of the difference between Mr. Craib's and Mr. Sanford's estimates of revenue for the year, the mean of the two, i.e., a sum of $84,793 00, appears to me to be as fair an estimate of probable revenue as I can form; and taking the expenditure as $74,500 00, and the revenue as $84,793 00, a clearance of $10,293 00 on the working of the plantation for the year may apparently be expected. If, however, from this the expenses mentioned in section 24 of the sequestrators' report, and the year's interest on the mortgagees' debt are deducted, an inappreciable sum of about $100 (wholly insufficient to compensate for the risk run), would remain for division among the annuitants and other creditors, and on some debts, an additional year's interest would apparently have become payable.

In my opinion, therefore, an immediate sale of this plantation is most advantageous to creditors within the meaning of the Rule, and this conclusion is strengthened by the fact, that the holders of about 92% of the total debts at present known to the Court (exclusive of two annuities which apparently affect part only of the property and are held by two ladies stated to be over 70 of age) are in favor of an immediate sale.

I therefore direct an immediate sale of this property.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH
GUIANA.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 26TH DAY OF FEBRUARY. 1903.

HENERY et al. Appellants,
versus

SWAIN et al. Respondents.

This is an appeal from a decision of Mr. F. J. Leaman, Government Officer, under the Amended Mining Regulations, 1899, for No. 3 Mining District. The respondents (i.e. the complainants before the Government Officer) in their complaint stated that they were the holders of claim licences for certain claims dated the 13th of May, 1901; that those claims were located on the 26th of January, 1901, by E. G. Swain, one of the respondents who afterwards transferred parts of the claims to the other respondents; that after the location of those claims the appellants HENERY unlawfully trespassed and entered on them and purported to locate them; and that in April, 1902, he transferred his alleged interest in the claims to the other appellant who was still in possession and extracting precious stones therefrom; and the complainants prayed "that they and their predecessors in title be declared to be the first locators, and therefore owners of the lands," and that the appellants be ordered to vacate the claims to cease work thereon, and that an order be made declaring the number of stones extracted from the said lands.

Apparently, default was made in filing an answer to the complaint and the matter came on for hearing before the Government Officer, who, after taking evidence, held that on the 20th February, 1901, HENERY entered and trespassed on and illegally located the two claims in dispute and that Swain must be deemed the first locator, applicant for and owner of the two claims, and the Government Officer ordered that work should cease on the claims, all tools and implements be removed therefrom, and the claims vacated within ninety-six hours of his decision and Swain be allowed to take peaceable possession on behalf of all the complainants.

The reasons for appeal are very lengthy but are in substance:—

(1.) That HENERY duly obtained claim licences prior in date to those held by the respondents and such claim licences were duly transferred to the other appellants and were held by them at the time of the hearing and this having been proved the Government Officer could not enquire further into the matter, he having no power to cancel or revoke a claim licence;

(2.) That the respondents are debarred from disputing the appellants' title, they not having opposed the grant of claim licences to HENERY or the transfer by him of such licences, and having allowed the appellants to remain in undisturbed possession for more than 18 months;

(3.) That the respondents mistook their remedy, the complaint being one for an unlawful trespass a matter with which the Government Officer could not competently deal, and they not having either when HENERY located the claims or when the complaint was filed, such possession of or title to the claims as would entitle them to take proceedings for trespass;

(4.) That the respondents were proved not to have located the claims in accordance with the Regulations;

(5.) That illegal evidence, without which the decision would be unsustainable was admitted, namely: a "Notice of location" of the claims, an "Application for a claim licence" therefor and a "claim licence No. 2,798" for the claims, the notice of location not being signed as required by the Regulations; and

(6.) That the decision is wholly unwarranted by the evidence.

The claim licences held by HENERY have not been produced in evidence, and presumably are like all other claim licences issued under the Amended Mining Regulations, 1899. Every such licence expressly states that it is issued "without prejudice to the rights of any other persons in respect of the same land" and that the locator takes it "subject to the condition that the location is (as he alleges, on Crown Land which) (not could at the date of his location but) "can" (i.e. at the date of the licence, "legally be located under the Mining Laws." Regulation 10 permits locations on such Crown Lands only as have not been previously lawfully occupied or previously located. The effect, therefore, of the words just quoted from the claim licence is, in my opinion, that if at the date of the licence there is no right founded on lawful occupation or previous location of the same lands then existing in any third party the claim licence when issued confers all the rights mentioned in Regulation 4, but if at that date there is right of previous lawful occupation, or previous location of the same lands then existing in a third party, the claim licence (whatever its effect against the Government if the fees are paid and received may be) confers no right as against such third party. Any dispute between such third party and the licence holder as to whether such land was or was not lawfully located would (if there were no licence) clearly come within the words of Regulation 134 (according to the interpretation put on similar words in the 1887 Regulations in Winter v Farnum & Co., 2 B.G., L. R. Rev. Cases p. 15), and the existence of the licence cannot in my opinion limit or restrict the jurisdiction of a Government Officer to hear and determine such dispute, this not being expressly laid down in the Regulations: the mere absence of any power in a Government Officer to formally cancel or revoke a claim licence which may in any such case be shown to be inoperative against a third party being insufficient to sustain any such conclusion as a formal cancellation or revocation of the licence in such cases, though very desirable to prevent fraud and mistake is not legally necessary to render the Government Officer's decision effective; and there being no other provision from which such limitation of a Government Officer's jurisdiction can be implied. The mere existence of HENERY's claim licences was, therefore, in my opinion, insufficient to limit the Government Officer's jurisdiction in the present case and to prevent his deciding whether Swain had a right as first locator to the lands claimed by the appellants; and the transfer of those licences by HENERY to the other appellant could not in my opinion put the transferee in a better position than his transferor or in any way affect such jurisdiction. The first reason for appeal therefore cannot, I think, be sustained.

Nor, in my opinion, are the respondents debarred from disputing the appellants' title by not having opposed the grant of the licences to HENERY or the transfer of the licences by him or by having permitted the appellants to remain in undisturbed possession for some time. There is no provision in the Regulations barring the right of any person who could have opposed the grant or transfer of a claim licence but it fails to do so, or preventing the subsequent enforcement of such right, and the unqualified words in a claim licence saving the rights of third parties support the view that such right is not barred. It cannot, in my opinion, be presumed that all the principles and rules of law relating to oppositions to the passing of transports and mortgages apply, even if not expressly adopted, to oppositions to grants or transfers of claim licences, especially when it is remembered that the vague general description of claims for which licences are asked renders the recognition by parties interested of the claims intended to be dealt with nearly impossible in many (if not most) cases. It may be added that Chalmers, C.J., in Winter v Farnum & Co. (ubi sup.) declined to accept the view that under such circumstances the right was barred, and under the Regulations then in force the rights of third parties were not expressly saved by the terms of the licence as is now the case. Non opposition by the respondents is not, therefore, in my opinion, sufficient to debar the respondents from disputing the appellant's title; nor in the present case have the appellants been in possession for so long a period that they can avail themselves of the plea of prescription, nor having regard to the circumstances proved and in particular to the facts that, in addition to the advertisement of the intended issue of Swain's claim licences, the appellant Henery (as appears from his evidence) was aware in or about March, 1901, that Swain had some claim in respect of this land, which claim was again brought to his notice in October, 1901, and in April, 1902, can the respondents now, I think, be deemed estopped or barred by laches or acquiescence from enforcing their claims if any.

The complaint filed in this case was in substance, I think, (notwithstanding some expressions used in it) which might seem to favour the opposite view, one not for trespass, but for a declaration of the complainants' rights in respect of the lands in question. This being so, the fact that the Government Officer has no jurisdiction, apparently, to decide an ordinary action of trespass does not affect this case and it is unnecessary to consider whether the complainants before the Government Officer had such a title to the lands as would enable them to maintain an action for trespass. The third reason for appeal is, therefore, unavailing.

In support of the allegation that the evidence shows the respondents not to have located the claims in dispute, in accordance with the Regulations the appellant's counsel has urged that, even if it be assumed that Swain's so-called location boards were in all other respects in order, the placing of the words "Jumped by" before Swain's name rendered them of no effect, that the location of the two claims was incomplete the dividing line between them not having been cut save for a short distance and there being no evidence that Swain held a prospecting licence at the date of his alleged location. In a case like the present where both parties hold claim licences those of the respondents or complainants before the lower tribunal being subsequent in date to those of the other parties and those parties have been for a considerable time in actual possession it is, I think, incumbent on the complainants to prove their title, or, in other words, the complainants must succeed by reason of the strength of their own title and not by reason of the weakness (if any) of that of their adversaries. The question, therefore, is, have the respondents (i.e. the complainants) in this case proved their title. It is, in my opinion, clear on the evidence that the so-called location boards had the words "Jumped by" on them when the appellant Henery located the claims, and (even if the conflict of the testimony as to whether the N. boundary line was cut by Swain or by D'Andrade be disregarded) that, at any rate the dividing line between the two claims was not cut save for a short distance: it is also in my opinion not proved that Swain held a prospecting licence. If the absence of proof just mentioned was the only defect in the complainants' proof of their title, I should be disposed to give an opportunity of remedying it, as was done in Harrison v. Gainfort (23 June, 1898), but the view I take of the other points involved renders this unnecessary. Regulations 12 to 16 (both inclusive), in my opinion, require that all the boundaries of a claim should be marked out in order to render the location complete. In the present case, the dividing line not having been cut the boundary lines of each of the claims was incomplete, and the complainants, therefore, failed to prove their title. It is urged on behalf of the respondents that Regulation 10 rendered the cutting of the dividing line unnecessary, provided the lines surrounding and bounding the two claims were marked out. I am unable to agree with this contention. Regulations 10 and 18 are the only ones I am aware of which refer specially to the lines surrounding a group of claims. It is clear from the proviso to Regulation 16 (a. f. dictum of Lush, J., in Mullins v. Treasurer of Surrey, 5 Q. B. D. 173) that until a grant or claim licence is issued it is necessary to keep the boundary lines of each one of a group of claims distinctly marked out through the boundary line of the whole group is distinctly marked, and this is inconsistent with the contention that Regulation 10 exempts an intending locator from the necessity of cutting all the boundary lines of each claim he desires to locate if he wishes to locate contiguous claims, provided he cuts the boundary lines surrounding the whole group. On the other hand that Regulation (No 10) is in harmony with all the other Regulations if the words "previously located" therein used are interpreted as meaning "previously located as required by these Regulations" (cf. Reg. 13) and the use of the phrase "kept distinctly marked" in lieu of the words "are distinctly marked" favours that view, as it gives the word "kept" its natural meaning. The point was raised in the course of argument whether assuming Swain's location was incomplete Henery should not have jumped the claims instead of locating them. This question appears to me not to arise as it would at most affect Henery's title, and the onus of proving a good title lay, in my opinion, on the complainants. I may, however, add that there appears to be no provision in the Regulations of 1899 debarring any person from locating Crown Lands except the provision contained in Regulation 10; and if, as already stated, the Regulations require a complete marking out of each claim, the non-marking of one side line would, in my opinion, prevent any attempted location being an ex facie compliance with the Regulations such as is required to prevent location (Patterson v. Richards & Pestano, 2 B. G. L. R. Rev. Cas. 42, Harrison v. Gainfort, ubi sup.) In view of the foregoing, it is unnecessary to consider the effect of the addition of the words "Jumped by" to the location boards, although that fact could not be wholly disregarded if it were necessary to determine whether there had been an ex facie compliance by Swain with the Regulations. The remaining grounds of appeal also which are special to the present case need not be considered, the conclusion already arrived at being decisive of the matter. The appeal is allowed with costs.

PRICE LIST OF ECONOMIC PLANTS, ETC., FOR SALE IN THE NURSERY.

1. Persons desiring large numbers of such plants as cacao, coffee, kola, nutmeg, citrus fruits, cocoanuts, etc., in baskets or direct from the seed-beds can only as a rule, obtain supplies by giving at least six months' notice previous to the date on which they will be required, as it has been found too expensive to keep on hand large supplies.

2. The Superintendent of the Botanic Gardens does not undertake the delivery of plants except to the Garden at New Amsterdam, Berbice, and to Onderneeming School, Essequibo, and will not be responsible for them after they are removed from the nurseries. In all cases the costs of flower-pots, packing, etc., will be charged in addition to the price of the plants.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 28TH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1903.

AMELIA TAYS, as Executrix of JOHN B. TAYS, deceased, by her Attorney, HENRY HAMILTON
LAURENCE,

versus

SPROSTONS, LIMITED.

This is an action for the recovery of certain sums of money, damages and loss to the inheritance of John B. Tays, occasioned by the Administrator General taking over the estate.

John B. Tays, it is alleged, was drowned at Tuma-tumari while a passenger on the steam launch Mabel, belonging to the defendants, through the negligent acts of the defendants or their servants.

The action is brought under the Roman Dutch Law, but it is contended on this point (1) that as it is one under "the obligations ex delicto" or crime, it does not lie, inasmuch as the Roman Dutch Criminal Law has been abolished, and that under it the liability to compensate must be coupled with that of punishment; (2) that the action is wrongly brought, for if any action is maintainable it must be by the heirs, and an executor, being only an agent whose duties are simply to wind up the estate, cannot be plaintiff; (3) that no action will lie for expenses after death, or for expenses as claimed here which do not result from the direct action of the defendants, that is, that the damage, if any, was due to the fact that the will of John B. Tays was in California; if it had been here no damage could have followed.

In Voet's Commentaries on the Pandicts, p. 319, it is clearly stated that the Aquilian action, which in Roman times was considered penal, was no longer held to be penal under the Roman Dutch law, but was directed to the recovery of property on the analogy of other action arising out of delict, and allowed to persons damaged, so that the plaintiff obtains the value alone of the injury done and damages. All imprudence, want of skill, and weakness, brings the same punishment just as obtains in those contracts which are effected through fraud or fault. But in the case in "which" reparation has to be made for damage, only that damage is considered which was caused directly by the act and not that which was caused by a new agency. The action for damage under the Lex Aquilia is twofold, direct and equitable. The direct action is allowed to the owner when the defendant has personally done the damage to the thing. The equitable action is also provided for the owner whenever damage has been done to his property by the defendant.

In Van Leuwen Bk. iv, ch. xxxiv, sec. 14, the person who has caused death is, moreover, bound to compensate the relatives of the deceased for the expenses of burial and any other damage or loss occasioned by the crime.

In the Introduction of Grotius as quoted, p. 437, chapter xxxiii, sec. ii, the slayer is not liable to the heirs except for the expenses of the funeral and when any further expenses are occasioned by the crime. But the slayer is properly bound to make compensation to the widow, children and others, if any there be, who were usually supported by the labour of the deceased, for losses and loss of profits calculated upon the principle of annuity.

An example of an action on this last obligation, as well as the liability for the acts of an employé or servant is to be found in the local case of Yhap v. Fonseca, decided in November, 1895. See also Van Leuwen, vol. II., p. 321, par. 1, and Digest Book IX., Title 4. In Clingen v. Ross, 16 Juta, p. 152, a mother claimed damages, funeral expenses, mourning expenses, and money paid to a motorman on the trams while searching for her son, who was drowned by falling into an excavation which the defendant had not fenced. The Lex Aquilia was quoted, and there was some argument as to the limitation in respect to the kind of damages recoverable, but the judgment, which was for the defendant, went on the evidence purely.

The items of the present claim are:—

Expenses incurred by the Administrator General in taking possession of, realising, and otherwise disposing of property and effects of the deceased	...	$ 14 32
Commission deducted by the Administrator General on monies received by him	...	102 27
Testamentary Duty paid	...	25 98
Registrar's Office fees and Stamps on recording Will, depositing Inventory, recording Power of Attorney from the plaintiff as executrix to G. H. Richter, and passing accounts of the Administrator General	...	26 18
Paid recording Power of Attorney from the plaintiff to H. H. Laurence	...	11 07
		$ 180 32

All these items were clearly the result of the deceased being unrepresented here, and although they were incurred by reason of his death, which is alleged to have been caused by the negligence of the defendants or their servants, were they not caused by a new agency? I think they are not damages or loss caused directly by the alleged negligence, and, as such, are not recoverable. It was argued that they are ejusdem generis as burial fees. I cannot agree with this proposition. This disposes of points 1 and 3. With regard to point 2, that the action is wrongly brought, an unusual position is disclosed. The will was made in California, and the widow, to whom the whole of the estate is left, is also sole executrix. An action is brought in her name as such executrix, and it is argued that, as the heirs are the only persons who can bring an action such as this, it is confined to them. In support of this the cases of Farnum v. the Administrator General of British Guiana, 14, Appeal Cases, 651, and Hinds v. Hinds were cited. Both these cases were local, and the wills were made in the colony. In Hinds v. Hinds, the Court directed the beneficiaries should have the opportunity, if so advised, of joining as defendants with the executors against whom the action, one for legitimate portion, accounts and security, was held to be maintainable.

In Farnum's case reference was made to De Montfort v. Broers, 13, Appeal Case 149, and the position of executors was defined under the Roman Dutch law as in reality only procurators, and that their powers in relation to the estates falling to the testator's heirs are merely those of management. In De Montfort v. Broers the following quotation from Van der Kessel is given:—"The executors of a testament since they are, as it were, procurators appointed by the testator to manage his funeral, to recover what is due to him, to pay his legacies and debts, and to administer his property until a division thereof can be effected, and since, therefore, they manage the affairs of the heirs also, cannot debar the heirs from the inheritance, unless the testator has directed otherwise, nor alienate the property without their consent, and hence it has not improperly been enacted at Middleburg that if all the heirs agree amongst themselves they may, after payment of what has been left to the executors in the testament, and on giving security to carry out the will of the deceased within a year, remove them from office."

It seems to me, therefore, that as executors manage the affairs of the heirs, they may maintain an action as agents of the heirs for the recovery of what is due to them,—it would follow then that compensation for the expenses specifically mentioned could be recovered by the executors, especially in a case such as this where the executrix is heir and authorizes an action. It is not a case of agent on agent, as was argued. This deals with this part of the case.

Several other points were raised during the hearing on the evidence tendered.

The first witness called was Lewis de Camp, and during the course of his examination he was asked whether he had given evidence on a former inquiry. The learned counsel for the plaintiff asked for the production of certain original documents from the Registry of Court. I would not direct this to be done, and it was arranged that a copy should be obtained. The exact procedure of sec. 73 of Ordinance 20 of 1893 was perhaps not very strictly carried out, but as the question as to having given evidence on another occasion had been allowed, I think it was sufficiently followed to permit the attention of the witness being called to those parts of the writing which were to be used for the purpose of contradicting him (sec. 74). The copy was then put in, and it was contended that its contents were admissible as evidence, as it came within sec. 9 of Ordinance 6 of 1900. I cannot agree with this. The document was produced to contradict the witness of the plaintiff by the plaintiff's own counsel. It accomplished that object, but that is all. The section of the Ordinance referred to is as follows: "Any copy or extract from any writing, document or record in the custody of any public officer which is required by any law or regulation to be written or made and delivered to such officer, or to be recorded in, if it purports to be signed and certified as a true copy or extract by the officer in whose custody the original is entrusted, admissible as proof of the contents of such writing, document or record, and as prima facie evidence of the matter or transaction therein mentioned." The document is a copy of the evidence of De Camp as given at an inquisition held at Tumatumari, concerning the cause of death of J. B. Tays and other persons. It certainly contains evidence as given by the witness, and as such is admissible, but can it be proof that the statements there are correct, or, in other words, can it prove a case by itself? If this was so there would be no need for witnesses at a trial when such documents exist. Does this class of document come within the provisions of the section referred to. By sec. 38 of Ordinance 6 of 1887, all inquisitions and records and minutes of proceedings at any inquiry shall be transmitted to the Attorney General. I do not think it does.

The Register of Deaths was also put in, and here again the question arises as to what extent it was admissible. It is clearly admissible to prove the death of a J. B. Tays, and I think, on the evidence, there can be no doubt that it identifies the testator in this case, but it is not proof of the cause of death, for the information given to the Registrar by sec. 39 of the same Ordinance is: according to the best of the informant's knowledge and belief.

The Power of Attorney of Amelia Tays appointing H. H. Laurence was also put in. This contains various allegations, which are not admissible. As a Power of Attorney the document was admitted.

I do not consider it necessary to go into the evidence. There is no proof that John B. Tays was on the launch Mabel, and all the expert evidence was based on that given by de Camp at this trial.

I do not call on the defendants.

I give judgment for the defendants, with costs.

JOHN E. HEWICK, J.

CHRISTINA BERTYN

versus

R. E. SAUL.

This is an interpleader in which R. E. Saul, claims one dark bay gelding value $60, one Victoria carriage value $80, and one set of harness value $10, taken in execution at the instance of Christina Bertyn, who obtained a judgment against Josephine Williams, for $360.

The execution creditor was made plaintiff, and in her claim alleges fraud, together with the fact that the Victoria, horse, and harness, were in the possession of Josephine Williams, who dealt with them as her property.

This is denied by Saul, who says the articles were at the time, his bona fide property, that he acquired them for valuable consideration, and that he had possession of them: he further claims $100 damages.

The question of fraud is really the issue.

The evidence for the plaintiff is that on the 1st November, 1900, a bay gelding, "Champion," and a Victoria, were registered by the Inspector of Hackney carriages, in the name of Josephine Williams, of 25, John Street. On the 17th May, 1901, the registration was changed to the name of J. A. Williams, of the same address. On 30th July, 1901, another transfer was made, this time to R. E. Saul. "Champion" was replaced by "Gold Digger," for whom he was exchanged and $50 paid. "Gold Digger" was sold to Dr. Wishart, and a few days after "Dandy," was purchased from Mr. Sealy.

On 30th July, 1901, a receipt was given by J. A. Williams to Saul, for $80 in full for a Victoria. The receipt was written at the Office of the Commissary, but the money was paid at the Ice House. No transfer of a horse licence appears to have been made, but the licence for the Victoria was transferred. The horse "Dandy" was purchased on the 24th September, 1901, and a licence taken out for it in Saul's name, on the next day.

A witness for the plaintiff, one Bollers, said that the transaction with the Victoria took place when the parties went to get a licence for "Dandy." This cannot have been, for the horse was purchased two months afterwards. Bollers also sued Saul for wages, and got judgment against him.

Christina Bertyn says, when she lent the money, Josephine Williams had a cab. That a change took place in the name and she spoke to Williams, who said he (presumably her son) was a good young man and would do nothing. The plaintiff also states that when Josephine Williams returned from Barbados, she was told that the cab was going to be sold, this was about August, 1901; but she appears not to have taken any steps then. Judgment was obtained on 23rd August, 1902, and the levy made on the 23rd September, following.

The direct evidence of the fraud is given by James Paris Bertyn, the brother-in-law of the plaintiff, through whom the money was lent. This witness says that Josephine Williams transferred the cab to her son's name for safety as she owed people some money; he also said that she made her son give Saul a receipt as if he bought the cab, and, to use his own words "they were many days picking over it before consent was given;" meaning it is presumed the consent of the children of Josephine Williams for he adds that Saul wanted all the placers put in his name but the children objected to this. James Paris Bertyn, managed a baker's shop for Josephine Williams. This was also transferred to Saul who admits he paid no money for it.

I admitted the evidence as to what Josephine Williams had said as being part of the res gestæ, fraud being pleaded.

The claimant Saul gave evidence and was subjected to a searching cross examination; he said he had $300 when he landed in the colony in 1892, from St. Lucia; he went to the gold fields and while there caught a cold and was paralyzed for 14 months, from 1899 to 1900. After this it appears he worked again, but, apparently, only on the placers of Josephine Williams, with whom he was and still is living. Saul declared that he purchased the articles he claimed with his own money and dealt with the cab as his own.

A book was produced recording the earnings of the cab. It opens in the name of Mrs. J. E. Williams; an A is written over the E. After 30th June, 1901, to the 6th October, there are no entries, but from the 6th October the entries are continued by Saul. The earnings were not large.

There are some features in the case which no doubt might well give rise to a suspicion, but I cannot understand why James Paris Bertyn took no steps to inform his sister-in-law, if what he says is true. It was the only proper thing to do especially as he was the person who induced Christina Bertyn to lend the money. She also stood by when she saw the change in the name.

As was held in Williams v Lewis the transfer is corroborative evidence for a claimant although it does not transfer the property.

The question of possession was raised. On this point it seems to me that the changing the stable by Saul, his dealings with Bollers the driver, the transfer and the alteration in the name of the cab, all go to show that Saul took possession, his occasional absence in the gold fields did not deprive him of his possession.

From the whole of the evidence, I am of opinion that the plaintiff has not proved her allegation of fraud and that Saul has made out his claim.

I order the amount in Court which represents the Victoria, horse and harness, to be paid to Saul; he also claims damages. The net proceeds of the sale amount to $72 46. When bought the Victoria was worth $90 as paid, and the horse cost $50. No mention is made of any harness in the receipt: it probably was included in the price of the Victoria.

I think the defendant Saul is entitled to the difference between these sums, namely: $67 54 and $15 damages for the loss of the use of the cab.

There will be judgment for the defendant for $82 54 as damages and costs.

M. P. LECA

versus

M. D'ORNELLAS.

This is a claim on a Promissory Note for $1,050 made by defendant in favour of one Vincente Xavier da Silva, or order by whom it was endorsed to the plaintiff.

The defence is practically that the note is a forgery and that it was never endorsed to the plaintiff who is not a holder in due course or for value.

The plaintiff gave evidence as to how he got the note, and what he paid for it. Before the note was bought the defendant was spoken to: he was told by plaintiff that daSilva had come to do business with the note. The defendant said that plaintiff could do business as the note was his (defendant's).

On the 8th November the plaintiff demanded payment, and was asked to produce the note; he did so and was told it was not due: defendant told him to return on the following Monday and he would be paid, on the Monday the defendant told plaintiff to sue da Silva.

The plaintiff's evidence was not shaken by the cross examination.

Mr. Hutson stated that he was consulted by Mr. de Souza, Solicitor in the matter, and was authorized by defendant to make certain proposals to the other side, he did so in term of a cash payment with costs, and the balance in monthly instalments. Mr. Gonsalves, the Solicitor for the plaintiff, asked for a cash payment of half the amount and negotiations were broken off. The defendant said on the first occasion that he would make an affidavit and deny the making of the note, that it was a forgery. Mr. Hutson when the defence was disclosed declined to act and subsequently both Counsel and Solicitor were changed.

Corroborative evidence was given of the payment to Da Silva and the signing of the receipt. Cheques of defendant were produced for comparison with the signature on the Promissory Note, and Mr. Clarke, was called to identify the signature. The defendant was not called.

There was one witness called for the defence but his evidence, if anything, helped the case for the plaintiff.

I have examined the Promissory Note and the cheques. The former is signed "Manoel D'Ornellas" the latter "M. D'Ornellas." The character of the signatures is the same and it is not unusual for a person to sign cheques in a different way to the ordinary signature. There are, however, two cheques, at least in which the word "August" is identical with the same word on the note. In many of the cheques this same word is written very differently. I have no doubt that the defendant made the promissory note, nor do I doubt that the plaintiff paid Vincente Xavier da Silva the one thousand dollars, as he says, for it.

I give judgment for the plaintiff with costs.

Extract from "Supplement to Addison's Digest," page 30.

EXTRADITION.

P. was sentenced in France to 10 years' hard labour, and 10 years' surveillance for arson, which sentence, according to the law of France, involved banishment to New Caledonia for life. After the sentence of 10 years' hard labour and 10 years' surveillance expired, P. escaped to this Colony. Held that he could be extradited, inasmuch as when he escaped he was still undergoing that portion of his sentence which necessitated his remaining in New Caledonia for the rest of his life. SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH
GUIANA.

GENERAL CIVIL JURISDICTION.

THIS 5TH DAY OF MARCH, 1903.

PAYNE AND WILLIAMS, Plaintiffs,

versus

SPROSTONS, LIMITED, Defendants.

The plaintiffs in this action claim from the defendants the sum of $5,000, as the balance due and owing of the purchase money of a nugget of gold sold and delivered to the defendants on the 11th October, 1902, by one Yearwood, who, the plaintiffs allege, acted as their agent in the matter. The defendants allege that they, as licensed traders in gold, purchased the nugget from Yearwood in accordance with the Mining Regulations; that the gold was taken from land the legal possession of which was not in the plaintiffs or either of them, or in Yearwood, but is claimed by J. W. Tafares, G. R. Harrison and J. Wilson severally; that the gold was not the property of the plaintiffs or either of them; and that if it was they allowed Yearwood to hold himself out as the owner and to deal with it as such; and the fact of his being their agent is also contested. The plaintiffs are admittedly the holders of two orders on the defendants for payment of $2,500 each, given by one of their agents, but those orders not being stamped by the defendants as required by law, are inadmissible in evidence.

Two questions have been raised and argued; (1) whether under the Mining Regulations there can be an undisclosed principal in any case in which gold is sold under the Mining Regulations, or (in other words) whether the vendor of gold sold under those Regulations must not in every case be the owner thereof; and (2) whether a purchaser to whom the thing agreed to be sold has been delivered can under the Roman Dutch Law in an action brought to recover the purchase money contest his vendor's title to the thing sold and give evidence to show it is the property of another. As it was obvious that the decision of the first or the second of these questions in the negative would be decisive of this action, the hearing was adjourned for their consideration, and the Court now gives its decision thereon.

There is not any provision that we are aware of to be found in the law expressly prohibiting every person who is not the holder of a claim or a licensed trader in gold from owning or possessing raw colony gold on which royalty has not been paid or expressly declaring that every such person claiming to own or possess such gold shall have no rights in or in respect of such gold, or that such gold in the hands of any such person shall not be an article of commerce, nor do we think the Mining Regulations when fairly construed have that effect. It is a possible (and in our opinion the right) construction of those Regulations that all they require is that the sale of such gold should in all cases be effected through the instrumentality of a claim holder in cases where he can sell, or a licensed trader in gold. It seems to us that the main object of the Regulations cited as to sale of gold (Regs. 99-102, Mining Regulations 1899-1901) is to secure as far as possible the payment of royalty on all such gold and with this end in view the sale of all colony gold on which royalty has not been paid (Reg. 2 definition of terms) is restricted to two classes of persons whose names and addresses are known to the Government and whose position as claim holders or licence holders is some security for their complying with the regulations, and they are required to comply with certain regulations as to the conveyance of gold to Georgetown and the payment of royalty, non-observance of which subjects them to a penalty. The possible construction already mentioned, if placed on the Regulations cited gives them their full effect, so far as this object is concerned, while it leaves unaffected all agreements between private parties in respect of such gold whereas any other construction would be at variance with the rule that a clear and definite enactment is necessary to prevent any thing being an article of commerce (Voet, ad Pand. xviii. 1. 20), and would open the door to fraud as it would permit claim holders to escape from arrangements now frequently made between them and others in respect of gold to be found on their claims. That construction is also supported by the fact that the Regulation as to sales of gold by a claim holder formerly in force permitted him to sell gold being on his claim only if a Government Officer was satisfied that it bona fide belonged to him; that the Regulation in force when this sale was made contains no such restriction, but expressly permits a claim holder to sell "any gold obtained from his claim." We think, therefore, that under the Regulations the holder of a claim may sell gold found thereon as the agent of the finder, if such finder be the owner thereof; and this being so, that there is no substantial distinction in principle between the position of a person owning such gold who sells it through the instrumentality of a claim holder or a licensed trader and that of an owner who sells by means of an auctioneer property which he could not legally sell at auction himself. We may add that the cases of Bensley v Rignold (5 B. and Ald. 335), Forster v Taylor (5 B. and Ald. 887) and Cope v. Rowland (2 M. and W. 149), cited by defendants' counsel, all of which are cases of actions to enforce alleged contracts which did not comply with or were in contravention of some statutory requirement, and the principles therein laid down, do not, in our opinion, preclude the interpretation placed by us on the Regulations, the main object of which, as already stated, appears to be to secure the payment of royalty, and none of which expressly requires the vendor of colony gold on which royalty has not been paid to be the owner thereof. It may be that the holder of a claim who agrees to permit another to extract gold therefrom in consideration of his receiving a portion of the gold so extracted, but does not state in writing to the Warden or Commissioner the name and address of the permittee, is liable to a penalty for breach of Regulation 40, and that any claims based on such agreement could not be enforced by either party against the other, but it is not in our opinion open to a third party to question in a case like the present, the validity of such an agreement.

No reason has been given nor are we aware of any why the owner of any such gold sold through the agency of a claim-holder should be in a position, different from that of any other undisclosed principal, and, it is, we think, clear, that the owner of any such gold so sold may sue the purchaser for the price thereof. (Voet ad Pand. x.x.1.106, cf. Higgins v Senior, 8 M. & W. 834, and cases cited in the judgment therein); the purchaser being entitled as against the undisclosed principal to the benefit of all the rights he had against the agent. To apply these principles to the present case, Yearwood the vendor has admitted on oath that in the sale of the nugget he acted as the plaintiffs' agent; the defendants (if they cannot question the title of Yearwood or of the plaintiffs to the gold) have not pleaded or shown that they have any rights against Yearwood which are a bar to the plaintiffs' action, and, so far at this part of the case is concerned, the Court holds that the plaintiffs' claim is established. It is right to add that the evidence, having regard to the principles governing such cases (Benj. on Sales, 3rd ed., p. 714, and cases there cited) are insufficient to show that any of the orders for payment of specified sums on demand given by the defendants' servants were received by Yearwood or by the plaintiffs as more than conditional payment for the nugget, and those orders not having been cashed on demand made and not having been parted with to third parties are no bar to this action; and that the cases of Humble v. Hunter (12, Q.B. 315) and Lucas v. Da La Cour (1 M. and W. 249) which were cited appear to us inapplicable, there being no such special form of contract entered into by Yearwood on the sale, and no such assertion or representation that he was owner of the gold sold as would take the case out of the general rule which permits an undisclosed principal to sue or be sued on a contract in writing made by an agent, even though the contract (according to the English law) may be required to be in writing (Calder v. Dohell, L.R., 6 C.P. 486), which in the case of a sale of gold is not required.

The question remains whether the defendants can, under the Roman Dutch Law, raise in this action any question as to the plaintiff's title to the nugget, and if so, whether they have done so by their pleadings. It is clear that the duty of a vendor under the Roman Dutch Law is only to deliver vacant possession of the thing sold and to warrant the purchaser against eviction, i.e. to compensate him to the full extent of his loss (quanti interest) if he is subsequently ousted by the execution of a judicial sentence, based on a cause existing at the time of sale, due notice of the institution of the judicial proceedings to obtain eviction having been given by the purchaser to the vendor. (Dig. xviii. 1. 25, 1; xix. 1. 11. 2 & 13 Voet ad Pand. xxi. 1. §§ 3, 10 and 11; Grotius Introd. Bk. iii. ch. 15 § 4; Van der Linden's Ins. Bk. 3, ch. 15 sec. 9; Van Leeuwen's Com. vol. ii, 141-142.) If, however, a vendor knowingly delivers a thing not his own to a purchaser who is ignorant of the fact the latter may, without awaiting eviction, take proceedings to compel the vendor to make good any damages (id quod interest) sustained thereby (Dig. 19. 1. 30. 1.) provided he has paid the price (Voet xviii. 1. 16.) It is also open to a purchaser when sued for the price if eviction be imminent, to require the vendor before payment to provide sufficient sureties against eviction or to make consignment and deposit of the purchase money. (Voet ad Pand xix. 1. 19: Dig. 18. 6. 18. 1.) In the case now before the Court, the nugget sold was delivered to the defendants and they received vacant possession (Pothier's Pand xix. 1. Art. 1 citing from Paul. ad. Ed.) They still retain possession of it and have not paid up the whole purchase money and cannot, therefore, rescind the contract of purchase and sale on the ground mentioned above, nor without restoring the nugget. (Voet xviii. 5. 1.) which they have not by their pleadings offered to do. Nor do the pleadings set up a case of fraudulent delivery by a vendor to an ignorant purchaser. It is not, therefore, open to the defendants in this case to give any evidence that the vendor was not the owner of the nugget, for the purpose of putting an end to the contract. Nor do we think they can give such evidence with a view to the plaintiffs being required to provide sureties against eviction. The pleadings contain no allegation that any specified person is entitled to the gold, but merely aver that it was found on lands the legal possession of which was not in the plaintiffs or either of them or in Yearwood, but is claimed by three other persons. No legal proceedings have apparently been taken by any of these persons save J. Wilson whose action has been dismissed, nor are any facts alleged from which, if proved, it could be inferred that eviction was imminent; indeed, the circumstance that the sale took place on 11th October last, and that no action is now pending which could have the effect of evicting the defendants is an indication that no such facts could be alleged and further, no claim that sureties be furnished is to be found in the pleadings. Those pleadings, therefore, do not, we think, allow the admission of the evidence it is desired to adduce, even if that evidence was otherwise admissible. But, in our opinion, the only facts which can be proved by a purchaser for the purpose of obtaining sureties against eviction (in a case where the pleadings supply a proper basis for such evidence,) are facts shewing such eviction to be "imminent" (Voet. ubi. sup.) Cens. For l. 4. 19. 12 and a purchaser cannot himself set up an alleged title in a third party, and much less a conflict of alleged titles in other parties, which such party or parties may never take active proceedings to enforce. No authority can be found for allowing this: all the authorities on eviction speaking of proceedings taken by third parties, and to permit proof of this kind to be given by a purchaser, would be inconsistent with the principle that a purchaser is only entitled to possession unmolested by third parties and has no remedy against a vendor in case of eviction unless he has given him the opportunity of contesting any suit brought for eviction. It might also open the door to collusion, between a purchaser and a third party having an uncertain claim which he would never seek to enforce, for the purpose of defeating a vendor's bonâ fide claim.

Judgment is therefore given for the plaintiffs, with costs.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 9TH DAY OF MARCH, 1903.

LEWIS, Appellant,
versus
WHARTON, Respondent.

This is an appeal from a judgment of Mr. S. G. T. Bourke, Acting Police Magistrate of Georgetown, in favour of the respondent in an action for the recovery of $20 described in the plaint as "being the amount of a certain order for the payment of $20 dated 16th December, 1901, drawn by J. E. Williams, on the defendant directing him to pay to the plaintiff the sum sued for" which order was alleged to have been accepted by the appellant on the 17th of December, 1901, but not to have been paid though demand had been duly made.

The only reasons for appeal which, having regard to the judgment of the Court on the 19th December, 1902, can be considered are, (1) that the decision is altogether unwarranted by the evidence and, (2) that the decision is erroneous in point of law, the Magistrate finding that the defendant had promised to pay when he had funds in hand and yet giving judgment against him in the absence of such proof.

The second of these reasons is based on the Magistrate's memorandum of the reasons for his decision, in which he states "that the defendant promised to pay it" (i.e. the order) "when he had funds in hand it is true." If this statement stood alone, it could only mean there was no promise of any kind to pay, given by the appellant other than a promise to pay when he had funds in hand. But as the Magistrate also finds that the appellant accepted the order unconditionally, I think, the fair construction of the reasons when read along with the evidence is that the Magistrate finds that although the plaintiff stated he would pay when he had funds in hand there was an unconditional written acceptance of the order by him.

The only ground of appeal, therefore, which requires consideration is whether the decision is wholly unwarranted by the evidence.

The order sued on comes within the definition of a bill of exchange given in section 3, of the Bills of Exchange Ordinance, 1891, as explained by section 10 of the same Ordinance, and must be considered as such, the use of the term "order" in the plaint not affecting the real nature of the document, and in any event not being a misdescription of which advantage could be taken on appeal (Ord. 15 of 1898, sect. 2). No objection to the stamping of the document can now arise, as no objection on that ground has been taken by any reason of appeal before the Court, and in the absence of evidence to the contrary it must be presumed the Magistrate did his duty under sect. 29 of Ord. 4 of 1888, and his decision is, by sect. 32 of the same Ordinance, final. The acceptance of the order not being qualified in writing as it might have been under sect. 19 of the Bills of Exchange Ordinance 1891, was, in my opinion, rightly held by the Magistrate to have been unconditional, and parol evidence could not, I think, be admitted to contradict the unconditional acceptance (New London Credit Syndicate v. Neal, L. R. (1898) 2, Q. B. 487), but even if admissible the conclusion that the acceptance was unconditional is, in my opinion, sustainable on the evidence although such evidence might be open to a different construction. The sole question remains, was there a conditional delivery of the bill under sect. 21, of the Bills of Exchange Ordinance 1891. Under sub-section (3) of that section, the delivery of an accepted order is presumed to be unconditional until the contrary is proved; and I see no sufficient reason for holding in respect of this point that the Magistrate's decision is not sustainable on the evidence: in other words, that the appellant discharged the onus laid on him by the sub-section cited. The written acceptance and delivery of the document would have had little or no significance if it had been intended to be so far as the immediate party was concerned, merely an escrow, that is to have no effect until the acceptor had funds in hand, while such party was left at liberty to negotiate it, and thus transfer it to a third party, as a holder in due course, without notice in whose favor unconditional delivery would be conclusively presumed.

The appeal is dismissed with costs.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 11TH DAY OF MARCH 1903.

GILBERT, Appellant,

versus

HENRY, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the decision of Mr. S. G. T. Bourke, Acting Police Magistrate of Georgetown, convicting the appellant of the larceny of $13 from the respondent.

The reasons for appeal stated shortly, are : (1) that the decision is erroneous in law, the evidence before the Magistrate shewing, at most, that the appellant is subject to a civil liability in respect of the said sum, and not sustaining the charge of larceny, as it did not prove that the appellant was bound to return to the respondent the identical and specific money he received, or that there was any felonious intent on the part of the appellant in receiving and retaining the said money, the evidence shewing that the appellant received and retained the money for his professional fees and charges for services rendered one A. Reid, in certain criminal proceedings taken against her; (2) that the decision is wholly unwarranted by the evidence. There was one other reason for appeal, viz. the rejection of legal evidence, but that reason was not argued, the evidence alleged to have been rejected appearing on the copy of the proceedings, and counsel stating that the reason had been given owing to an oversight.

The case has, I infer from the Magistrate's Reasons for decision, been dealt with in the Court below as one of larceny by a bailee; and the Magistrate finds that the money in question was delivered to, and received by the appellant to be applied as bail for one A. Reid; that it was so used and afterwards returned to the appellant who appropriated it to his own use which he had no right to do, and refused to return it to the respondent and that being a barrister-at-law, he must, or should have known he had no right to retain it. From the evidence it appears that the sum in question was not equal in amount to the deposit required as bail, and that the difference between the two amounts was made up by another sum advanced by one Mottershead, and that when the two sums advanced were placed in the hands of the appellant he was, as a legal practitioner, acting on behalf of Reid, in the pending proceedings. Under all the circumstances the appellant, though he may have been liable to a civil action for the sum received by him from the respondent, was not, in my opinion, legally bound to restore in specie to the respondent and Mottershead, the identical coins he had received from them respectively, and this being so, however reprehensible his conduct was in declining to pay a sum which he was not entitled to refuse to pay, was not legally guilty of larceny as a bailee. (R. v. Hoare, 1 F. and F. 647, R. v. Garrett, 8 Cox C. C. 368; R. v. Hassell, 30 L. J. M. C. 175). The Magistrate's finding appears to negative any felonious taking of the money by the appellant in the first instance or when received from the Sergeant of Police, and I see no sufficient reason for dissenting from that finding; and the appellant could not, I think, be regarded as the clerk or servant of the respondent at the time he received back the bail money from the Sergeant of Police.

The charge of larceny, therefore, cannot in my opinion, be sustained, and the appeal is therefore allowed. The respondent did not appear at the hearing of the appeal, and I do not allow any costs.

9.—(1.) Mode of ascertaining ad valorem duties.

case of goods alleged to be purchased of the fact of purchase that the entries in such invoice are true, and that the invoice is genuine in every particular, and also in the case of such goods or of goods obtained otherwise than by purchase that the price charged for the said goods as represented by the invoice aforesaid or by the entry appears to be a fair market value for such goods, at the place, and at the time, that the same were purchased by the importer or consignor thereof.

(2.) No discounts or deductions from the value of any goods chargeable with ad valorem duty shall be allowed unless such discount or deduction be clearly shown to the satisfaction of the Comptroller or other proper Officer on the original invoice or unless the same be verified by the signature of the manufacturer, merchant, or person from whom the goods set forth or described in the invoice were purchased, and by whom such discount or deduction has been or purports to have been actually allowed.

Assessment of values expressed in foreign coinage

10. When any invoice for goods purchased in a foreign Country expresses the value of such goods in the coinage of that Country, such value shall be assessed by the Customs authorities in the Colony at the constant exchange value (based on the relative values of the precious metals) of such foreign coinage for sterling money, and the importer shall pay duty, when duty is payable at an ad valorem rate, on the amount calculated at such value.

Articles im-

11. In all cases where such package is not so marked or labelled or commonly sold or reputed, the duty (if payable on weight) shall be calculated on the gross weight of such package and its contents.

Composite
goods.

12.—(1.) Goods not prohibited to be imported into or used in the Colony, composed of any article liable to duty as a part or ingredient thereof, shall be chargeable with the full duty payable on such article, or, if composed of more than one article liable to duty, then with the full duty payable on the article charged with the highest rate of duty: Provided that this section shall not apply in the case of any article being a compound of or containing opium, in accordance with the last current British Pharmacopœia, and specially imported for medicinal purposes only.

(2) The proper officer of the Court shall, without further authority or warrant than is hereby granted, in every such case pay out to the landlord, after deduction of the costs of execution only, all and every sum and sums not exceeding six months' rent or one hundred and twenty dollars as aforesaid. diction, full satisfaction for the special damage which he may have sustained thereby, and no more: Provided always that where the plaintiff recovers in such action, he shall be paid his full costs of suit and have all the like remedies for the same as in other cases.

(2.) No tenant or lessee shall recover in any action for any such irregularity or unlawful act as aforesaid, if tender of sufficient amends has been made by the party distraining or his agent before such action brought. (4 of 1846, s. 15.)

Recovery of Possession of Tenements.

15. Where the tenant of any house or room held by him as a tenant from month to month at a rent not exceeding the rate of five dollars a month, fails to pay the rent due within fourteen days or in case of a weekly tenant within seven days after the day on which such rent becomes due and payable, such failure shall be deemed a determination of the tenancy, and the landlord may proceed to recover possession of the said house or room under the provisions of this Ordinance.

Neglect to pay rent a determination of tenancy in certain cases.

16.—(1.) Whenever the term or interest of any tenant of any tenement held by him for any term, either without being liable to the payment of any rent or at a rent not exceeding the rate of two hundred and forty dollars a year, has ended or has been determined by a legal notice to quit, or otherwise, if such tenant (or, when such tenant does not himself occupy the premises or only a part thereof, if the person by whom the same or any part thereof is occupied) refuses or neglects to deliver up possession of the same, the following proceedings shall be lawful:—

Proceedings for recovery of possession of tenement after determination of tenancy.

Form No. 7.

(a.) It shall be lawful for the landlord of the said tenement or his known agent to claim possession of the premises before a Magistrate, and the Magistrate shall, on the complaint being sworn to before him, cause such tenant or occupier to be served with a summons in writing, signed by any Magistrate, to appear before the Magistrate of the District in which the premises are situated to show cause why possession of the said premises should not be delivered up;

(b.) If such tenant or occupier does not appear at the time and place appointed, or does appear but does not show, to the satisfaction of the Magistrate, reasonable cause why possession should not be delivered up, and still refuses or neglects to deliver up the possession of the said premises to the said landlord or agent, it shall be lawful for the Magistrate, on proof of the holding and of the end or determination of the tenancy and the time and manner thereof, (and, where the title of the landlord may have accrued since the letting of the premises, on proof of the right by which he claims the possession) to issue a warrant to any constable or bailiff requiring and authorizing him, within a period to be named therein, being not less than three clear days from the date of such warrant, to give possession of the premises to such landlord or agent; and such warrant shall be a sufficient warrant to any constable or bailiff executing the same to enter upon the premises, with such assistants as he may deem necessary, and to give possession accordingly; but such entry shall not be made on a Sunday, Good Friday, Christmas Day, or public holiday, or at any time except between the hours of nine in the morning and four in the afternoon; and (c.) Where the tenement consists of lands and there are growing crops thereon which have been planted by the tenant or by those from whom he derives his interest, the Magistrate may direct that the landlord shall, before obtaining such warrant, deposit with him the value of such growing crops, after deducting the amount of what may be due and will become due for rent of the land up to the time when such warrant will become executable, and after deducting the costs incurred, if the value of such crops exceeds the said sum. The Magistrate shall have full power to inquire into and determine the value of such crops, and the Magistrate, on the warrant being returned executed, may direct that the amount be paid over to the person who was formerly the tenant. The Magistrate may authorise any person or persons to enter on the lands the possession of which is claimed, and direct him or them to appraise the value of such growing crops. Every person so appointed may enter on the said lands and examine the said crops. Every person who obstructs any person so appointed shall be guilty of an offence, and, being convicted thereof, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty-four dollars.

(2.) If any person who, previously to the execution of any such warrant, was a tenant, after the execution of such warrant re-enters on the said tenement, he shall be deemed a wilful trespasser, and shall be treated accordingly, unless such person has acquired title to the tenement after such warrant has been issued: Provided always that nothing herein contained shall be deemed to protect any person by whom any such warrant to deliver possession of any such tenement may be sued out as aforesaid from any action which may be brought against him by any such tenant or occupier for or in respect of such entry and taking possession where such person had not, at the time of suing out the same as aforesaid, lawful right to the possession of the said premises. (4 of 1846, s. 17.)

(3.) Proceedings for the recovery of tenements may be taken concurrently with proceedings for recovery of rent.

Service of summons on tenant or occupier.

17. Every summons issued under the provisions of this Ordinance to any tenant or occupier to appear before a Magistrate may be served either personally or by leaving the same for him with some person in occupation of such tenement, and, where the tenant of such tenement does not reside therein, either by serving the same personally upon him or by leaving the same at his usual place of abode two clear days before the day appointed for the appearance; but if the person so holding over cannot be found, and admission into the premises so held over cannot be obtained, and the place of abode of such person not residing as aforesaid is either not known or admission thereto cannot be obtained, the posting of the said summons on some conspicuous part of the said premises shall be deemed to be good service upon such person. (4 of 1846, s. 18.)

18.—(1.) In every case in which the person to whom any such warrant is granted had not, at the time of granting the same, lawful right to the possession of the premises, the obtaining of any such warrant as aforesaid shall be deemed a trespass by him against the tenant or occupier of the premises, although no entry may be made by virtue of the warrant; and in case any such tenant or occupier becomes bound with two sureties as hereinafter provided, to be approved of by the Magistrate, in such sum as to him may seem reasonable, regard being had to the value of the premises and to the probable costs of an action, to sue the person to whom the warrant was granted with effect and without delay, and to pay all the costs of the proceedings in such action in case a verdict shall pass or sentence be given for the defendant, or the plaintiff shall discontinue or not prosecute his action or be nonsuited therein, execution of the warrant shall be delayed until judgment has been given in such action; and if, on the trial of such action, a verdict passes or sentence is given for the plaintiff, such verdict and sentence shall supersede the warrant so granted, and the plaintiff shall be entitled to double costs in the said action.

Case of warrant obtained without right to possession.

(2.) Every such bond shall be made to the said landlord or his agent, at the costs of such landlord or agent, and shall be approved of and signed by the Magistrate; and if the bond so taken is forfeited, or if, on the trial of the action for securing the trial of which such bond was given, the Judge by whom it is tried does not endorse upon the record in Court that the condition of the bond has been fulfilled, the party to whom the bond has been so made may bring an action, and recover thereon: Provided always that the Court where such action as last aforesaid is brought may, by order, give such relief to the parties upon such bond as may be agreeable to justice, and such order shall have the nature and effect of a defeasance to such bond. (4 of 1846, s. 19.)

19. It shall not be lawful to bring any action or prosecution against the Magistrate by whom such warrant as aforesaid may have been issued, or against any constable or bailiff by whom such warrant may be executed, for issuing such warrant or executing the same respectively, by reason that the person on whose application the same is granted had not lawful right to the possession of the premises. 15th March, 1903.

HIS Excellency the Governor directs the publication, for general information, of the following Progress Report on Sugar Cane Experiments, for the Half Year ended December 31st, 1902.

By Command,

A. M. ASHMORE,
Government Secretary.

SUGAR CANE EXPERIMENTS.

PROGRESS REPORT FOR THE HALF-YEAR ENDED DECEMBER 31ST, 1902.

1. During the period under review, the sugar-cane experiments have been carried on under my control, assisted by the advice of members of the Sugar-cane Experiments Committee of the Board of Agriculture. In November, the experiments were directed during my absence in the interior of the Colony by B. Gainfort, Esq., Acting Superintendent of the Botanic Gardens. The actual conduct of the agricultural work has devolved upon Mr. Ward, the Agricultural Assistant in charge of sugar-cane experiments. Mr. Ward, however, was, during the months of October and November, incapacitated by ill health, and Mr. Beckett, Assistant Instructor in Agriculture, was in charge of the field-work.

2. During the month of July the portion of the manurial field hitherto occupied by Bourbon canes under experiment with various forms of phosphates and of potash salts was replanted with White Transparent, and with Nos. 625, 115 and 109 varieties. These kinds of canes will be examined for their varying demands for nitrogen and the effects, if any, of manurings with phosphatic manures upon their yields. Much difficulty has been experienced in obtaining a satisfactory spring of No. 625. We have noticed this defect on previous occasions and it appears to us that tops for planting No. 625 should be obtained from canes of somewhat older growth than is desirable when replanting Bourbon canes from drawn-down stools. The canes on the other fields received appropriate agricultural treatment.

3. August and September were occupied by routine agricultural operations.

4. The canes commenced to arrow late in August, No. 95 arrowing quite freely during the last week of that month. It was followed by No. 130, and in the middle of September by Nos. 74, 116, 117, 1,905, and 3,187 and later by Nos. 102, 109, 135, 1,087, 2,028, 2,190, 2,468, 3,956, and the White Transparent.

5. The work of analysing the newly-raised varieties of canes was commenced early in October and continued during that month, during November and during the first week of December. The selection of canes for further experimentation has been carried out on more stringent lines than hitherto and a very large number of kinds were rejected on account of cultural or analytical defects. From about 11,000 examined 170 kinds were selected as worthy of further study.

6. During the latter part of October and the month of November seeds were sown from the following selected varieties of canes :—

Nos. 109, 115, 117, 130, 132, 145, 147B, 625, 754, 1,087, 2,468, Bourbon, White Transparent and Green Ribbon. In round figures 5,400 seedlings were obtained. The experiments arranged in the hope of obtaining hybrid canes from the White Transparent, the Mani or the Po-aole failed to attain their object as in this year the White Transparent arrowed much earlier than either of the varieties planted with it.

7. It was intended that the varieties of canes on the Brickdam field and on the manurial plots of North field should be reaped about the middle of November, but my absence from town in that month, and Mr. Ward's illness, prevented this being carried out, and the reaping commenced in the last week of December. The reaping of the canes was completed in the first week of January, 1903.

8. The following are the varieties cut on the North field, the average weights of canes per acre yielded by each of them, and the indicated saccharose contained in the juices expressed from them by a Laboratory mill :—

Nos. of canes.	Tons of canes per acre.	Lbs. of saccharose per gallon in the normal juice.
625	82.8	1.769
116	76.3	1.747
130	75.7	1.699
145	70.8	1.814
78	68.1	1.640
115	66.7	1.710
109	65.9	1.758
3956	62.1	1.713
74	59.16	1.800
95	59.1	2.077

The mean return on this field was at the rate of 78·8 tons of canes per acre if the actual area occupied by the cane rows and drains is alone taken into account; or at the rate of 69·2 tons per acre on the total area occupied by cane rows, divisional spaces and drains. The causes of this high rate of yield are—that the land is practically virgin-land not having been, as far as is known, used previously for cane-cultivation; that after being cleared from the dense bush which had covered it, it was taken over by a very active growth of native leguminous plants, and was occupied by this for several months; that it is of a somewhat lighter character than is usual in the neighbourhood of Georgetown; that it received thorough tillage; that its drainage facilities during the time the canes were on the land were fairly satisfactory; and that the canes were subject to an unintentional irrigation caused by leaks in the large trench north of the field allowing water to constantly find its way through the small drains. Under these conditions Nos. 74, 78, 115, 116, 130, and 625 responded in varying degrees to applications of sulphate of ammonia, while Nos. 95, 109, 145 and 3,956 were not favourably affected. Applications of slag-phosphates were not attended with favourable results in this crop of plant-canes.

9. The following shows, arranged in order of their yields of indicated sugar, the rates of yields of canes per acre, and the saccharose-contents of the expressed juice of the varieties of canes, which were reaped as second ratoons on the Brickdam field :—

Nos. of canes.	Tons of canes per acre.	Lbs. of saccharose per gallon in the normal juice.	Indicated sugar, Bourbon as 100.

During the half-year the samples of soils alluded to in paragraph 9 of the progress-report for the half-year ended June 30th, have been analysed and the results incorporated in the report on the experiments recently issued. A report has been prepared, printed and published dealing with the large scale experiments with varieties of sugar cane carried on in the Colony in the crop-season ended June 30th, 1902, and the preparation of a report has been completed dealing with the sugar-cane experiments carried on in the fields at the Botanic Gardens and in the Government Laboratory during the crop-years 1896 to 1901. This report, which covers the experiments made in the Botanic Gardens fields to June, 1902, and in the Government Laboratory to September of the same year, was forwarded to the Government Secretary on September 30th, 1902, and was issued to the public on January 24th, 1903.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.*APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 13TH DAY OF MARCH, 1903.

DA SILVA, Appellant,

versus
FERNANDES, Respondent.

The plaintiff, in the court below, claimed damages from the defendant for the alleged wrongful and unlawful shooting of his pigs which were grazing in the pasture of Plantation Belfield. The magistrate dismissed the claim of the plaintiff, who now appeals.

It is contended for the appellant that the pigs were not strays inasmuch as the appellant was lessee of a piece of land at Plantation Belfield and, therefore, his pigs had the right to graze on the pasture of the estate; and that Belfield pasture is not private land within the meaning of Ordinance 1 of 1866. The appellant was lessee of a house lot; a person who leases a house lot on an estate does not thereby acquire a right to graze animals on other lands of the estate unless there is a special agreement to that effect. The evidence shows there was no such special agreement. I have no hesitation in saying that the Belfield pasture is private land within the meaning of the Ordinance. The estate, which is used largely for the purpose of grazing cattle, belongs to private individuals, and no persons can have any rights in or on any of the lands except by agreement with the proprietors. The case of Attorney General v. Hamer, 27 L. J., Ch. 841, which was referred to by Counsel for the Appellant, does not in any way apply, that case deals with the waste lands and common belonging to a manor in England.

It is also argued that only the owner or person in possession has the right to shoot, under section 7 of Ordinance 1 of 1866, swine that are trespassing, and that their authority cannot be delegated. In this case the manager was the person who shot the pigs. I think he is a person in possession of the property within the meaning of the section and, therefore, it is unnecessary to go into the question whether the owner or person in possession can delegate their authority.

The remaining argument urged on behalf of the appellant, is, that the pigs were not strays as they were under the control of the appellant. It is said that the appellant calls them and they come home and are therefore under his control. I do not think the argument was seriously put forward. I am clearly of opinion that even if the pigs came home when called they were still strays when away from home. The case of de Souza v. Roach, Rev. Ct., 1891, hardly applies; in that case the animal was tied up in a yard where the owner was a tenant of a room, and it was held that the animal was under the direct control of the owner and therefore not a stray.

These are all the reasons of appeal put before the Court, and, as they all fail, the appeal must be dismissed with costs.

A. V. LUCIE SMITH, J.

THIS 16TH DAY OF MARCH, 1903.

BINDA, Appellant,

versus

RAMCHARITER, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the decision of the Acting Magistrate of the North Essequibo Judicial District, who dismissed an interpleader claim of the appellant under somewhat peculiar circumstances. On the conclusion of the evidence of the claimant and on his calling no witnesses the Magistrate dismissed the claim and upheld the levy.

In his memorandum of reasons the Magistrate says "I was of opinion that his testimony was so unsatisfactory, and such that did not justify my calling upon the defendant's attorney for a defence to the claim, as my mind was made up that nothing had been proved to support the claim before the Court."

Upon questions of fact, the Appeal Court is very loth to interfere with the decisions of Magistrates as they have the witnesses before them, and are in a position to judge by their demeanour and as to the truth of their statements. But this case is out of the ordinary. Had the interpleader been in the Supreme Court, as the goods were taken out of the possession of the claimant, the Execution Creditor would have been made plaintiff in order to justify his levy. In the Petty Debt Court the claimant made the plaintiff, but as the articles levied on were taken out of his possession the defendant ought to have been called on. The Magistrate was not right in dismissing the claim as he did. Attention was called by the learned counsel for the appellant, to the fact, that the defendant's plea was a simple denial, and when the Magistrate hears the case afresh and such evidence as may be produced by the plaintiff and defendant as I direct him to do, he will note this and require a plea in accordance with the rules.

It was urged that the Magistrate had stated that he had made up his mind, and, therefore, the evidence should be taken by this Court. I do not think this an insuperable bar to his re-hearing the case on further evidence, and, as the case is an Essequibo one, I am not disposed to put the parties to the expense of coming to Georgetown. I refer the case back for re-hearing.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH
GUIANA.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 14TH DAY OF MARCH, 1903.

SPROSTONS'

versus

J. S. DRAGTEN.

An objection was taken to the audience of the Solicitor in this case on the ground that a charging order was not an execution and that the right a Solicitor has to appear in an action for the recovery of a sum of money not exceeding $250; ceases when judgment has been obtained; and, further, that the shares in which the charging order is applied for represent a large sum. On the other hand it was contended that a charging order is a process in execution and that a Solicitor has a right of audience. It has been held in re Hutchinson, 162, 2, Q. B. D. 515, that a charging order is not an execution against the goods of the debtor within the Bankruptcy act: but here this question does not arise.

There is a special rule in our Rules of Court Order xxxvi., r. 86, (inserted to meet the case of Legatt v. Western, 2, Q. B. D. 287, providing for "the sale of the debtors interest in shares or scrip or his interest in such number or quantity thereof as shall be sufficient to satisfy the amount due under the judgment, together with the costs and charges of the sale." This certainly to my mind gives it the character of an execution and limits it to the amount of the judgment.

In Playter v. Barreiro, 20th April, 1900, I held that a Solicitor had no right of audience in a judgment summons when the amount the Court had to deal with was above $250.

In this case the value of the judgment is within the limit and the charging order can only be effective to that amount as an execution. I therefore think a Solicitor has the right of audience.

JOHN E. HEWICK, J.

J. B. FARINHA,

versus

ANTONIO DE FREITAS.

This is an interpleader tried summarily. The goods have been sold by consent of the parties and the net proceeds are in the hands of the Registrar.

The case for the execution creditor (Plaintiff) is that one Zanoel Gomes, the debtor, fraudulently removed the goods from his shop before the original levy in October, and that subsequently the same goods were taken back to the shop, which was reopened by Farinha, but was in reality still the shop of Gomes. In support of the Plaintiff's case, the landlord of the shop, and his brother-in-law stated that a few days before the levy, they saw goods removed in barrels to the shop of one da Silva, from which some were taken back as required for sale when the stock ran short. The landlord also said Gomes told him he intended to carry on the shop in Farinha's name. Receipts for the rent were given to Farinha, who opened the shop and restocked it for the most part with goods purchased from Messrs. J. P. Santos & Co. and other firms for cash, later on credit was given but some goods which had just been put in were returned at the request of a partner of Messrs. J. P. Santos & Co., as it was rumoured, De Freitas was going to levy, Farinha had given notice to the landlord who levied for his rent about 3 days after it was due. The information of removal of the goods, it is said, was given to the execution creditor, but the shop was carried on for about two months before the present levy was made. Gomes went to Surinam after the first levy, but returned and was seen serving in the shop. De Freitas himself says the shops were well stocked before the levy, but at the time it was made there was little or nothing in them.

The uncle of Farinha gave evidence as to the money, at the disposal of his nephew, only some $30, when their partnership was dissolved.

The claimant himself gave evidence to the effect that he saved $360 and went into partnership with his uncle, that his share of the capital was $211 which he took out in small amounts when he thought his uncle was not acting properly. That he worked for wages and had $300 besides £11 10 in gold when he decided to open the shop. This money he gave to da Silva to keep when the first levy was made and it was with this money that he purchased the goods with which he restocked the shop which he rented from Mendonca, and that most of the goods levied on were those he bought from Santos & Co., some goods he purchased from da Silva, amongst the latter a clock which is said to have been the property of Gomes. Farinha also purchased a set of scales through one Alfred from the execution creditor at the Marshal's Sale.

On the whole of the evidence, I am not satisfied with the case for the execution creditor.

Farinha undoubtedly purchased a quantity of goods from firms in Water Street, and these were for the most part the goods levied on.

The claimant is entitled to the proceeds in the hands of the Registrar, and I direct they be paid to him. I also grant him costs.

JNO. E. HEWICK, J.

JULIA AUGUSTIA GOMES, assisted by her husband JOSEPH ALFREDO GOMES,

versus

A. E. MATTHEWS.

The plaintiff claims the sum of $177 33, balance of account. The defendant admitted owing $20 21, but was given leave to defend as to the balance. Judgment was entered for the amount admitted.

In the statement of defence, subsequently filed, the defendant alleges that the plaintiff had certain goods to the amount of $162 29 which were not credited on the Bill of Particulars filed, that the several sums of $17 60 and $4 29 on the 20th February and 20c. on the 5th March, 1901, were wrongly debited, and he also says that he was unaware until sued, that he was dealing with the plaintiff, but thought it was with her husband; he further counter claims for $157 12 for goods sold and delivered at plaintiff's request, between 29th January and 15th March, 1901.

The defendant is willing to set off this amount against the plaintiff's claim.

In reply, the plaintiff denies that any of the goods except certain piling staves and 413 feet piling stretchers were sold and delivered, as alleged. That if such goods were sold and delivered the prices are not fair and reasonable, and that she did not agree to pay the prices charged, and that the fair and reasonable prices agreed on are those credited. The action was thus virtually on the counter claim, and I directed the defendant to begin.

The defendant himself gave evidence to the effect that he knew plaintiff's husband only, that he supplied the business which the plaintiff carried on at Bartica with materials for a gold digging boat and for building a house. Mora and greenheart planks of different sizes, wallaba staves, &c., all the materials mentioned in the Bill of Particulars; he was asked by the agent to give his custom to the business and did so. The arrangement was made with G. N. Harris, the manager of the business.

Written orders were given at times: some were produced.

One of the 24th January, 1901, signed by G. N. Harris, per Jos. A. Gomes, is for 3 mora planks, two silverballie boards, 6 bundles shingles, 24 piling posts 8 feet each, 1,200 piling staves and 400 feet piling stretchers.

On 22nd February, a letter was written by Harris about the overcharged rates. Mora planks, 16 cents per running foot instead of 12 cents, greenheart boards 12 cents instead of 9 cents per foot, greenheart planks, 16 cents instead of 14 cents. The boatbuilders had objected to the charges. A corrected account was requested to adjust the accounts of defendant, Forte and Outridge (presumably boatbuilders.)

On 20th April, Harris again wrote asking for the account which he said Mr. Gomes said he had not received. Attention was again drawn to the charges, and they are put at 10 cents for boards, 12 cents for 1½ inch and 16 cents for 2 inch.

On 11th March, Mr. T. C. Alexander wrote complaining of the narrowness and crookedness of the staves, and saying a reduction would have to be made on them. On the 9th March, 1901, he referred to an order already sent for 1 mora plank 2 inches, 20 inches or 18 inches broad, and ordered 2 more planks of same.

On the 14th March, the same person wrote again acknowledging the receipt of 2 mora planks and 19 stretchers which were accepted. Reference is again made to the stretchers and staves sent before. Of these Alexander wrote "you will have to give at a reduced price or you may send for them as they are of no use to us. The piling staves sent us are miserable, they are only refuge staves and we do not require them under no consideration, you may also send for those and cancel the order for staves altogether," at the end of the communication, he recapitulates.

"Note Well."

First we do not require any more stave and that you are to send for those you sent as they are of no use.

2. Dont supply any more mora planks.

3. The first lot of stretchers sent us you shall have to give at reduce prices or send for them also—no good.

4. You may supply gate posts and balance of piling posts very early.

Having the Honour to be,

Yours Obedient,

JOS. A. GOMES.

There is another communication apparently from the same Alexander without date, on which there is written "264 staves received."

"I posted you a letter this morning asking you to let me know whether you be able to supply us sharply. Mora as to order i.e. 4 pieces. 20 x 2 and 18 x 2."

This must have been in March as the entry in the defendant's book is March 11—264 piling staves at $3 25 per hundred. No credit is given for these.

The defendant said he supplied all the goods he charged for and the prices were agreed on with the agent. A reduction was asked for and he made it, sending the amended account to Harris. Cadwallader Osmond Allen, clerk to the defendant, during 1900-1901, stated that all the materials charged on January 30th, February 4th and 27th and 14th March, were sent. There was a dispute as to the prices which were reduced. Mora and Greenheart remained at 16 cents, boards were reduced to 10 cents. In consequence of the memorandum of Alexander, good staves were sent, the others were not returned. The regular price of staves is $3 25 per hundred. This witness left the employ of the defendant in December 1901, and up to the time he left there was no dispute. Harris was not in the employ of Gomes when the final account was sent.

George Nathan Harris corroborated the defendant's case. He wrote about reducing the prices and a corrected account was sent to him with which he was satisfied. He forwarded the account to the plaintiff's husband.

The plaintiff's book was called for and was produced and Harris stated that the overcharges entered on 20th February, 1901, were made in pencil by him as he hoped to write to Mr. Matthews asking him to make a reduction. The account was left open as he did not know what the result would be. The prices entered in plaintiff's book on 27th February, were not made by him. Matthews charged $9 60 and $3 80 were credited, $36 16 is correct, not $38 88 as charged. As a fact only $36 16 are charged in the book.

The reductions were asked for on account of the boat builders, not all on account of the business. The amended account was sent to the firm of J. A. Gomes. Harris actually received all the goods up to 27th February, 1901, he entered everything except the figures up to that date. The credits were not in detail—the delivery notes were filed—the credit was not given when the goods were brought. He entered 413 piling staves but not mora boards, he received 38 piling staves (only 30 8-feet are charged). This witness was asked in cross-examination as to the Bartica Club, and a suggestion was apparently made that some of the materials were for the Club which had an account.

It was not usual to enter the amount till the account was received when an entry was made of the lump sum.

The plaintiff did not give any evidence nor were witnesses called on his behalf.

Mr. Sampson contended that as the plaintiff's book was called for by the defendant and was produced the defendant must stand or fall by it; that on the 27th February some items were entered, not others, that the evidence of delivery is flimsy and does not prove sale and delivery, and that from March 11th there was no evidence, and further that there was no evidence of direct communication with Mrs. Gomes.

It is interesting to compare the books.

The first credit in Gomes book is $5 88, for 1/37 x 11 g. h. boards 1 inch, 1/38 x 10 g. h. boards 1 inch, at 9 cents, $5 88. This item is once carried down, the other item carried down is By amount of contra account for materials supplied, 19 x 00 $128 94, this agrees with the original entry in the defendant's book; then there is an entry of $5 for cash not in the defendant's book, this is carried forward, but the $5 88 is missed in the total and has to be entered under the carry forward up to folio 520. Then comes a credit entry in the plaintiff's book of $36 16 agreeing with the details in defendant's book. Then we come to the entries in the plaintiff's book of which Harris spoke, February 27—38 piling posts, the price 10 cents, and the amount $3 80 as well as the price of 413 feet of old piling stretchers at 2 cents, and $8 26 being in a different handwriting and not being carried out in the total but added under it at the foot of the page. The defendant charges for 30 8-feet piling posts at 32 cents. There is then a clear entry of $9 60 in plaintiff's book, evidently for the 30 8-feet posts at 32 cents as entered in the defendant's book. The 264 piling staves as admitted by the memo. of Alexander find no place in plaintiff's book, nor do the 2 mora planks and 19 stretchers also admitted and accepted on 14th March, apparently 25 feet long. The piling staves and stretchers formerly sent were evidently kept for they are priced at 2 cents. The amended account of the defendant shows that a reduction was made even on the $128 94, and I am satisfied that the materials as charged by the defendant were received and were according to prices arranged for.

As to the contention that no direct communication was had with Mrs. Gomes, I do not think it necessary to make any remark.

The defendant in his counter-claim only claims $157 12. I think him entitled to set off this sum.

against the $157 12, less 20 cents, rightly debited on 5th March 1901, and $2 72 difference between defendant's book and particulars. The balance on the accounts thus being in plaintiff's favour to that amount. I may mention that the plaintiffs' book shows $377 29 owing by defendant, but the Bill of Particulars gives it at $367. I give judgment for plaintiff for $2 92. No costs to either party.

JOHN E. HEWICK, J.

FULL COURT (APPEAL COURT.)

THIS 17TH DAY OF MARCH, 1903.

GOMES, Appellant,
versus
YONG, Respondent.

This is an appeal from a judgment of Lucia Smith, Judge, in an action brought by the appellant by specially indorsed writ against the respondent to recover $114 59 for goods sold and delivered, for moneys paid and advanced, for carriage of goods and men and for board and lodging of men, all at the respondent's request, the particulars of the appellant's claim being given in two separate accounts marked "A" and "B" referred to in the case as the Bartica and Cuyuni accounts.

The respondent having admitted owing the sum of $31 27 on account "A" judgment was given against him for that amount and he obtained leave to defend as to the residue of the appellant's claim.

By his statement of defence the respondent denied that he was indebted to the appellant for the residue of account "A," alleging that the appellant had failed to give credit therein for a sum equal to such residue, being the value of certain shop goods which the appellant's agent had agreed to purchase for that sum from the respondent and which had been delivered to and accepted by the appellant, he also denied that the goods and services specified in account "B" had ever been rendered, or had ever been rendered at his request, or that the prices charged therefor had ever been agreed on; and he further set up a counter claim for the sum of $101 as damages for the breach by the appellant of a contract to carry for reward certain goods delivered to him from Bartica to St. John's Landing on the Cuyuni, and for consequential loss and damage of the goods so delivered.

By his reply the appellant joined issue on the defence and, pleading alternatively to the counter claim, denied the making of an agreement to carry, the agreement to carry otherwise than at the respondent's risk, the damage or loss of the goods and the non-delivery thereof within a reasonable time, and averred that the loss and damage (if any) were due to natural causes beyond his control and not to any breach of his contract (if any), and that he transported the goods from Bartica to Central Landing on the Cuyuni and was ready and willing to transport them thence to St. John's Landing within a reasonable time but the respondent accepted short delivery.

The learned Judge after taking evidence held that the set off claimed against the residue of account "A" (Bartica) was established that the respondent was indebted to the appellant in the sum of $21 in respect of account "B" (Cuyuni), and that the respondent was entitled to recover under his counter claim the sum of $48 as damages for non-delivery and damage and loss of goods, and judgment was given for the respondent for the sum of $27 being the difference between the two sums mentioned and costs.

From this judgment the appellant has appealed on the grounds (1) that the evidence shows the so called agent of the appellant who purchased the goods, the value of which was set off against the residue of account "A" had no express authority or ostensible authority to make such purchase; (2) that the loss and damage of the respondent's goods arose from their inherent nature and quality and not from any failure by the appellant to deliver them within a reasonable time; (3) that the evidence did not prove the appellant to be a common carrier to St. John's Landing, or to have been lacking in ordinary care in carrying the goods; and (4) that the judgment is erroneous in law because damages were awarded for non-performance by the appellant of the duty of such a carrier, and for not having furnished special means of conveyance whereas he was only bound (if at all) to convey by the ordinary means, and also because the appellant who had recovered in the action a larger sum than the respondent recovered on his counter claim was entitled to the costs of the action.

It appears to us from the evidence that the arrangement as to purchase of the respondent's goods was originally made between the respondent and one Waddle, who was in charge of a shop of the appellant at St. John's Landing, that the goods purchased were at St. John's Landing and were after the purchase taken into the appellant's shop. That Vieira, an employé of the appellant's at Central Landing, adopted the arrangement for purchase and gave an acknowledgment of his indebtedness to the respondent's shopkeeper at St. John's Landing, for the amount at which the goods had been valued, the acknowledgment being in a form commonly used in carrying on the shop business, that this acknowledgment was subsequently presented to the appellant but not paid by him. These are in substance the same conclusions (as far as they go) that the learned Judge arrived at, and none of them is questioned by the notice of appeal or by counsel's argument for the appellant. This being so we think in the absence of evidence showing he has not derived any benefit from the goods purchased and placed in his shop, there is prima facie proof that he has benefited to the extent of their value which is, according to the evidence on both sides $35 56; and the appellant cannot legally retain that benefit without making compensation. (Van. Leeuwen Com. Vol. ii p. 7; Grotius Int. iii 39, 15). Under these circumstances it is unnecessary to decide whether Vieira had express or ostensible authority to purchase the goods for the appellant, though the facts that he was not only in charge of the appellant's shop at Central Landing, but (as the appellant states), engaged the shopmen and did "everything" and that he had previously, on one occasion at least, purchased goods for the shop (as appears from the appellant's statement that he quarrelled with him for so doing) go far to show that he had at least ostensible authority.

It appears from the printed heading of the bills put in evidence that the appellant describes himself as being a "general agent, carrier and merchant." The plaintiff also states in his evidence that he had a boat going three times a week to Central Landing and a boat to Quartzstone once a month, but that he did not know about St. John's Landing. It is however established by the evidence that he contracted to carry for hire and reward the respondent's goods from Bartica to St. John's Landing. That the appellant was according to English Law which is almost unique in this respect a common carrier appears to be clear on this evidence and the only point of doubt would be whether St. John's Landing was one of the termini between which he usually plied. But whether it was so or not, having contracted to carry the goods to the landing he was, in our opinion, under the law of this colony by virtue of that contract bound to transport the goods within a reasonable time, and on the evidence this obligation appears to have been broken. It is proved that fourteen packages were conveyed by boat to St. John's Landing about a week after their arrival at Central Landing, and that six packages were taken by boat from Central Landing to Quartzstone, which is about midway between Central Landing and St. John's Landing. It is also proved that it takes about three days for a boat to go from Central Landing to St. John's Landing, and about six days from Bartica, a well known centre for boats to St. John's Landing. In the absence of other evidence, it is impossible to discover why the boat which took the fourteen packages did not return for the remainder, or why the boat which took the six packages to Quartz Stone could not by successive trips have taken all the goods to St. John's Landing; or why a boat could not be obtained from Bartica to fulfill the contract. We think, therefore, there was a prima facie proof, that the appellant had the means of fulfilling his contract and that the delay from October to January in doing so was unreasonable. The goods which the appellant agreed to carry were shop goods of the kind usually sent into the interior and we see no ground whatever for saying the damage they sustained was due to their inherent nature and quality, and not to the long time they were kept on the way owing to the appellant's failure to deliver them. The amount awarded as damages is not questioned, and the judgment of the learned Judge on the respondent's counter claim is affirmed.

The question remains whether the appellant was entitled to the costs of the action. Section 56 (2) of the Supreme Court Ordinance, 1893, provides that "no costs shall be allowed to a successful plaintiff in any action brought by him in the Court which might have been tried in a Magistrate's Court in its civil jurisdiction" unless the Judge gives a certificate that the action was one which it was expedient to bring in the Supreme Court. The plaintiff in the present case (i.e. the appellant) recovered in this action less than $100, even if the set off of $35 56 and the damages claimed by the counterclaim of the defendant (now the respondent) be not taken into account, but he claimed in the action more than $100 which is the limit of the Magistrate's Civil jurisdiction. In a similar case which arose under section 116 of the County Courts Act, 1888, in England, it was held that an action is one "which could have been commenced in a County Court" if it is an action of a kind the County Court can entertain and the amount actually recovered is within the limits of the County Court jurisdiction, although the amount claimed may have exceeded that limit, (Solomon v. Mulliner, (1901), 1, Q. B. 76). We think there is no substantial distinction between the words "which could have been commenced," and the words "which might have been tried" used in the local enactment and that the appellant was therefore not entitled to the costs of the action unless the judge gave a certificate, and no certificate has been given nor do we see any sufficient reason for holding that a certificate should have been given in this case. The appeal is dismissed with costs.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 16TH DAY OF MARCH, 1903.

FARMER & Co., LTD.

versus

H. CONRAD & Co.

In this action the plaintiffs claim from the defendants the sum of $945 16 being the amount due by the defendants for sulphuric acid sold by them as del credere agents of the plaintiffs. The defendants admit that the amount sued for is correct, but they allege that the plaintiffs refused and neglected to supply them with sufficient acid to enable them to fulfil their contracts with third parties, which contracts the plaintiffs were well aware of, and that in consequence of their being unable to fulfil their contracts the defendants have been compelled to pay $980 53 as damages which sum they claim to set off.

The parties commenced doing business together about December, 1896. In the purpose of effecting sales of the acid it was necessary for the defendants to enter into contracts to cover what is spoken of as the "season" of which fact the plaintiffs must, as business men, have been aware. It is clear from the correspondence between them that the plaintiffs were aware from the first (see their letter of 4th May, 1897,) that the defendants were entering into contracts for the delivery of the acid to third parties. The plaintiffs never objected to such contracts being entered into, on the contrary they always wrote the defendants "they were pleased" when they entered into a contract and in their letter of 7th March, 1899, they practically told the defendants that they would make shipments to meet the contracts. From the whole of the correspondence I have no doubt that the plaintiffs were well aware of these contracts and acquiesced in the defendants entering into them for the purpose of pushing the business. On the 14th March, 1900, the defendants wrote to the plaintiffs that they had not yet concluded contracts for next season, shewing it was their intention to enter into contracts for that season as in previous years, the plaintiffs made no objection to their continuing their contracts. On the 18th July, the defendants wrote that their arrangements were almost completed for the season and also that they would require a certain amount of acid to arrive in September. The plaintiffs in answer to this on 7th August, state they note what "you expect to require in September," and enquire if shipment is to arrive or leave in September: there is not the slightest hint that they will not ship. On the 2nd Aug., the defendants write what orders they have booked and how acid is to be sent to meet those orders. The plaintiffs make no objection and on 21st August they write we note your ideas of shipment up to the end of the year, and on the 4th September, they further write "we take due note of your requirements for supply of acid during the next season and are endeavouring to make the necessary arrangements." In September, they did not ship acid but, on the 18th the plaintiffs wrote "we could have made a shipment this week but were waiting the promised remittances." In consequence of the plaintiffs not shipping, the defendants were called on to pay damages to the persons with whom they had contracted, the subsequent shipments not being in time or sufficient to carry out those contracts. I am of opinion that the liability of the defendants to pay the damages arose from the fact of their being agents of the plaintiffs, and that the defendants in entering into the contracts out of which this liability arose, were acting with the knowledge and sanction of the plaintiffs and are, therefore, entitled to be indemnified, unless the plaintiffs contention after referred to can be maintained.

It is contended on behalf of the plaintiffs that the defendants are not entitled to be indemnified inasmuch their conduct was such that the damage was brought about by their own fault. There appear to have been numerous complaints as to remittances commencing as early as 15th December, 1896.

The plaintiffs, however, still carried on business with the defendants. The defendants claimed that no remittances should be made until the whole shipment was disposed of, that claim seems to have been acquiesced in by the plaintiffs inasmuch as they write they do not want remittances on account. They however said they wanted monthly settlements. The defendants state they understood that to mean monthly settlements for every shipment that had been wholly disposed of. It is suggested that a small portion of each shipment was kept back for the purpose of delaying the remittances. I am not prepared to hold that portions of certain shipments were not disposed of till some considerable time after the bulk of the shipment for the purpose of defrauding plaintiffs of prompt remittances. In some instances the remittances were not as prompt as they might have been, but I hardly think that justified the plaintiffs in refusing to ship acid to meet the contracts entered into by the defendants for the benefit of the plaintiffs with their knowledge and consent. If the plaintiffs were not satisfied with the dealings of the defendants they could have revoked the agency, but they must have indemnified the defendants in respect of the contracts entered into by them, they might have employed, for instance, other agents to whom the acid to carry out the contracts could have been sent; the plaintiffs might possibly themselves have completed the contracts. Presuming there was a default on the defendants' behalf in making remittances according to their instructions as is alleged, such default had been going on since, at any rate, 1897, and if the default was such as to justify the plaintiffs in stopping the supply they should have elected to do so promptly and given notice to the defendants not to enter into contracts. It would be, in my opinion, inequitable that the plaintiffs should after these lapse of years without any notice or warning stop the supplies just at the time they must have known the defendants had to make deliveries according to their contracts of which the plaintiffs were aware on the ground that certain acid which had been sent to the defendants had not been yet paid for.

For the foregoing reasons, I think the defendants are entitled to set off the amounts claimed and there will be judgment for the defendants with costs, except the costs of the day of 17th February, 1903, the costs of which day the defendants must pay to the plaintiffs.

IN pursuance of section 12 of the Lighthouse and Pilotage Ordinance, 1899, the report and its annexures, of the British Guiana Lighthouse and Pilotage Authority for the year 1902, which have been laid before the Governor, are hereby published for general information.

By Command,

A. M. ASHMORE,
Government Secretary.

OFFICE OF THE COMMITTEE OF PILOTAGE,
GEORGETOWN, DEMERARA,
30th January, 1903.

SIR,—

I have the honour, by direction of the British Guiana Lighthouse and Pilotage Authority, to inform you that the Statutory Meeting of the Authority, fixed for the 27th instant, fell through for want of a quorum, and was held yesterday. I have now to hand you, in accordance with Sections 12 (1) and 14 of the Pilotage Ordinance, the following documents:—

1. Copy of the Report of the acting Pilot Master on the working of the Demerara and Essequibo District for the year 1902.
2. A Report on the working of the Berbice District for the same period.
3. Statement of Receipts and Expenditure, Balance Sheet, and copies of the Auditors' Reports on the books of the Authority, to the 31st December, 1902.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

A. SMELLIE.

Secretary B. G. Lighthouse, & Pilotage Authority.

The Honourable

A. M. ASHMORE, C.M.G.,
Government Secretary.

Copy of the Pilot Master's Report on the working of the Demerara and Essequibo Pilotage District, for the year 1902.

I have the honour to submit the following Report on the working of the Demerara and Essequibo Pilot Service for the year 1902.

During the year 255 Steamers and 81 Sailing Vessels were piloted into port of an aggregate tonnage, respectively, of 312,103 tons and 34,877 tons. These figures differ in only a slight degree from those of the previous year, there being 4 fewer Steamers in 1902 and 3 more Sailing Vessels, the tonnage of both classes amounting in the aggregate to 346,980, as against 346,474 tons in 1901. The services of Pilots were also employed in piloting 16 vessels into Essequibo and 14 out, in moving 114 vessels in the harbour, and 4 vessels from one part of the Essequibo River to another.

PILOT MASTER.

Captain Duncan, having been granted four months' leave of absence, left the Colony on 5th June, and while on leave applied to be retired on pension. After some correspondence with the Government on the subject, Captain Duncan was finally awarded a pension of £350 per annum, commencing on the 1st December, his leave being extended up to that date. During his absence the duties of Pilot Master have been performed by the Reporter, first on a private arrangement with Captain Duncan, and on his retirement being employed by the Authority, with the sanction of the Government. As having acted for Captain Duncan on several occasions, I desire to record my appreciation of the thorough and excellent manner in which his work was performed, the up-to-date manner in which it was always kept being of material assistance to me in the performance of my duties.

PILOTS.

The staff of Pilots has been maintained at the following complement:—3 Chief Pilots, 3 first class, 3 second class, and 1 third class Pilot.

1 apprentice resigned on account of ill health, and left the Service on the 1st March. I propose filling his place on a suitable applicant presenting himself. The only remaining apprentice continues to act as captain of the "Ibis."

I have pleasure in stating that the Pilots have, on the whole, performed their work in an efficient manner throughout the year, and their conduct has been satisfactory. The health of the Pilots has been fairly good. Sickness has been accountable for absences from duty equivalent to one Pilot for 172 days, and casual leave for one Pilot for 37 days. Pilots have been engaged on special service for 91 days in the aggregate, and for 10 days a Pilot was detained at the Quarantine Station. Altogether, the staff for pilotage purposes proper has been reduced by one Pilot for 310 days. The work of Pilot Master's Assistant, formerly carried on by the Senior Chief Pilot, has been performed by Mr. Wm. Estwick, who has combined the offices of messenger and clerk, receiving additional remuneration for his extra duties.

LIGHT SHIP.

The Light Ship has been moored at her station, $8\frac{1}{2}$ miles outside the harbour, throughout the year, and has regularly exhibited her light between sunset and sunrise. The vessel was docked and remetalled throughout in June, 1900, so that it is possible she will require to be brought in for repairs in 1903. The mast is showing signs of wear, and is, in the opinion of the Captain, unsafe, so that it will require to be renewed with as little delay as possible. The main lantern and other gear of the vessel is in good order. Six new gimbals and pins for the lantern were imported during the year, at a cost of £14, and four of those in use, which had become very much worn, were repaired in the Colony. On the 24th May the vessel was fouled by the s.s. Indianapolis, and sustained some damage on the starboard quarter, which was temporarily repaired. The work will be completed when the vessel is brought in.

Extensive repairs have also been made to one of the boats.

PILOT TENDER "IBIS."

The Pilot Tender "Ibis" was docked in April, stripped, caulked, and re-metalled throughout with 20 and 18 oz. copper and yellow metal; the garboard strake, shoe, and other parts of the vessel were renewed and otherwise repaired. The Tender made 114 trips to the Light Ship, and was employed for 62 days on special service. During the absence of the "Ibis" on special service, communication has been maintained between the Light Vessel and shore by hiring a fishing boat at $3 50 per trip, 17 trips having been made in this way.

LIGHT HOUSE.

The Light from this station has been regularly exhibited between sunset and sunrise. The Revolving Lamp, as previously reported, is now lighted by electricity, which gives an effective light, but is uncertain, the light having failed on 7 occasions during the year, only once, fortunately, for any length of time, when an oil lamp which is always kept ready for such an emergency was brought into use.

The work of signalling between the Light Vessel and shore has been satisfactorily carried on at the Semaphore station.

The Municipal taxes on the Light House lot, formerly paid by the Government, are now defrayed by the Pilotage Authority.

TOWER SIGNAL STATION.

All arrivals at the Light Ship and all Colonial Steamers have been signalled from the Flagstaff, and the Time Ball has been regularly dropped twice a week at mean noon.

The Assistant Signalman resigned at the end of December, after 5 years' service.

BUOYS AND BEACONS.

The customary half-yearly inspections have been made of the Buoys and Beacons at the approaches to the Demerara and Essequibo rivers, and those in the latter river, and repairs made to the moorings, &c., where necessary. Renewals have been made in the case of No. X and Blue Jacket Beacons, and Mudderbush Beacon, which had blown down, has been replaced by a Black and White Buoy. A new topmast and disc have been supplied to Endeavour Beacon, and a new disc to Red Bank Buoy.

Notice was given in May by Messrs. Booker Bros., McConnell & Co., Ltd., that they would have no further use for the three Buoys put down at their instance at Baracaria, as the place would no longer be used for a timber landing. One Buoy has been lifted, and I purpose removing the other two at the next inspection.

After a lapse of ten years, vessels have begun again to load timber at Groete creek. The place was surveyed, and it was found that the sand bank had made up to the southward of the creek. A loading berth was, however, found to the northward, and the inner Buoy which had been removed has been replaced.

From soundings taken during the year, it is found that the depth of water on the Bar and in the approaches to the Demerara River, remains pretty much the same as at the date of last Report.

CONSIGNEES.

Three new House Flags have been added to the list of Consignees' signals, the applicants being Messrs. A. Pestana, the Charlestown Saw Mill, and M. P. Comacho. Nos. 7, 38 and 46 have been, respectively, assigned to these merchants.

CASUALTIES.

There are only two casualties of any importance to record.

On the 1st February the 3-masted schooner "Humarock" took the bottom coming in, when nearing the White Buoy, remaining there until the following tide, when, on getting under way, she was unable to steer owing to the wind being light and northerly. The vessel drifted and grounded to the eastward, and after several attempts had been made to get her off, she was eventually towed into port on the 5th February. No blame was attached to the Pilot.

On the 24th May the s.s. "Indianapolis," in charge of Pilot Mittelholzer, in going out came into collision with the Light Ship, through an error of judgment on the part of the Pilot, and caused some damage to the latter vessel, which is referred to elsewhere. The Pilot was fined ten dollars.

LANDMARKS.

It has been discovered that the chimney at Zeelandia, Wakenaam, is in very bad repair, and threatened with gradual demolition. This is due in a great measure to a growth of trees on the top and sides of the structure. This chimney, with one at Chateau Margot, East Coast, Demerara, was bought by the Committee about six years ago, in order to preserve the same as landmarks. It is expected that the repairs to Zeelandia chimney will involve an outlay of several hundred dollars.

FINANCES.

The Receipts from Pilotage during the year amounted to $26,634 50, or $769 78 less than for the previous year. The Expenditure was $25,520 75, as against $26,053 55 in 1901.

The only extraordinary items of expenditure during the year were the docking of the "Ibis," which cost close on $1,700, and the payment of the Municipal taxes on the Light House, $338 20. The death of the Senior Chief Pilot in December, 1901, and the alteration in the mode of paying the Pilots,—from a small salary with a percentage of the fees earned, to a fixed scale of standing wages,—are accountable for a saving of $2,120 30 in the item "Pilots." Compared with the previous year, there was a decrease in 11 items of expenditure, and an increase in 9, or a total saving of $532 80.

With all sources of Revenue taken into account, there has been a profit for the whole year of $2,488 15, which has, however, been more than counter-balanced by the loss on the Berbice Pilot Service, amounting to $2,791 53. There has thus been a loss on the working of the whole Pilotage Service of the Colony of $303 38 for the year under review.

AMALGAMATION.

The Government are moving in the matter of the amalgamation of the Pilot and Harbour Services under one official, and it is expected that the same will shortly take place. Two motions on the subject, a copy of which has been forwarded to the Authority for their remarks, are to be introduced into the Annual Session of the Combined Court for 1903, and, I understand, the necessary legislation for effecting the amalgamation is being prepared.

Under the circumstances, it is possible that the present is the last Report of this nature which the Committee as a body will receive.

(Signed) R. T. WRIGHT,

Acting Pilot Master.

16th January, 1903.

Report on the working of the Berbice Pilotage District for the year 1902, compiled from the Half-Yearly Reports.

MEMBERSHIP.

The members of the Berbice Committee at the 31st December, 1902, comprised:—

W. M. BRICE, Esquire, Chairman,
Hon'ble JOHN DOWNER,

Messrs. A. J. P. WAINWRIGHT,
S. S. WREFORD,
M. ELIAZER, Sub-Comptroller of Customs,
W. N. CHRISTIE.

Mr. C. H. Hughes, a member of several years standing, died in November, his place being filled by Mr. Christie.

Twelve Statutory and four Special Meetings were held during the year, at which all matters pertaining to the working of the Service were considered.

PILOTAGE.

During the year seven vessels entered the port of New Amsterdam, on which Pilotage dues were payable, with an aggregate tonnage of 2,921 tons.

PILOT OFFICE.

On the 1st October the Office was transferred from Messrs. Perot & Co.'s premises to the Custom House, this being part of the scheme of retrenchment carried out in accordance with the instructions of the Government. At the same time Mr. A. A. Melville relinquished his duties as Secretary, the same being assumed by the Senior Officer of Customs, without remuneration, by order of the Government, and later by Mr. J. V. Mittelholzer of the Customs Department.

PILOTS AND SEAMEN.

The duties of these Officers were satisfactorily discharged. As a result of the change effected with regard to the Lighting of the Port, the services of six seamen were dispensed with between the 1st October and 31st December.

LIGHT SHIP.

The Light Ship was brought in on the 1st October and placed in the position formerly occupied by the Light Punt, $\frac{3}{4}$ mile off St. Andrew's Point, resulting in a saving in the wages of seamen of \$33 per month. The Light has been regularly exhibited throughout the year. The vessel is in fair order, but will require to be painted during the coming year, and fitted with a new stove.

LIGHT PUNT AND PILOT TENDER.

Tenders have been solicited for the purchase of the Light Punt and Pilot Tender. The former was brought in on the 1st October, and moored at the Customs Wharf, and the latter passed out of commission on the 15th December. Communication between the Light Ship and shore is now maintained by means of a fishing boat hired for the purpose.

BEACON.

A Beacon has been placed, at a cost of about $135, on the outer end of the Spit of Crab Island, to mark the extent of the Flat.

FINANCES.

The Receipts from all sources amounted to $389 78, compared with $571 34 for the previous year, and the expenditure to $3,181 31, as against $3,265 18 for 1920.

The construction and placing of the Crab Island Beacon constituted the only important item of special expenditure, and the retrenchments before alluded to were made too late in the year for the effect of the same to be appreciably noticeable in the Returns of Expenditure.

Note (a).—If the Homeward Mails, &c., are embarked in time, and the Packet be in all other respects ready, she may start from Colon the previous evening, but the departure from Jamaica homeward is not to be accelerated, unless from Quarantine or other causes the Packet may have to coal at another Port, in which case she may leave Jamaica as soon as she is ready. In an exceptional case, the departure from Colon may be somewhat later than the Table Time, provided that the authorized stay at Jamaica is not curtailed nor the departure from that Port retarded.

Note (b).—If either of the Steamers on the Branch Routes has not reached Trinidad, the Packet is to await the arrival of the missing Vessel two clear days, if necessary; otherwise the Packet is to start for England the moment the Mails, &c., from the several Branch Packets and from Trinidad have been received on board, and she is in all respects ready for sea.

Note (c).—Should the tide not suit for leaving Demerara at the hour appointed in this Table, the Packets may leave at any earlier hour at which the tide may suit, or by the next tide after the appointed time.

Note (d).—The Packet may remain at St. Thomas later when necessary for docking, if it be found in practice that she can reach Trinidad early enough not to risk delaying the departure of the Homeward Packet.

Where the time specified for arrival at a Port is after dark, the Packet may remain outside the Harbour until daylight; and as regards St. John's (Antigua), unless the Packet arrives in time to admit of her leaving so as to get well clear of surrounding dangers during daylight, she may remain till the following morning.
